HERE IS STORY OF MARAUDERS IN BURMA WAR

Volunteers Reach India Post.

[Merrill's Marauders! A band of incredibly tough, slippery American jungle fighters whose volunteer exploits behind enemy lines was instrumental in smashing Jap supremacy in northern Burma early this year. This is the first chapter of their story told by a Chicagoan who helped lead the Marauders from Ledo to the fall of Myitkyina. It is the story of the G.I. Joe, his corporals and his sergeants; the men who do the killing and who get killed.]

It was the morning of Sept. 4, 1943, that I found my name posted with 25 others on the bulletin board of headquarters company, 126th infantry, in Australia. Above the names was an order that we report at the regimental command post the next day at 7 a. m. There was nothing else, but we were pepped up.

It had been more than four months since our return from the battles of Buna and Buna Mission in New Guinea. In this time we had done virtually nothing except take our basic training all over again under a captain who undoubtedly had been a fine garrison officer back home. What he didn't know about military etiquet was not worth knowing.

But to us who had fought the Japs nearly six months in the New Guinea jungles, his stilted methods looked pretty silly. We were bored stiff and the mysterious order on the bulletin board was like a shot in the arm.

400 Men—Still in Dark.

From regimental command the next morning we were taken in trucks to the divisional parade ground and lined up before a speaker's platform. There were about 400 of us in all, summoned from the various outfits that had seen combat. With us were divisional and regimental officers. But if they knew what it was all about they gave us no hint.

At 9 a. m. a staff car pulled up and Lt. Gen. Walter Krueger got out. Gen. Krueger never was a jovial man, but his manner was even more serious than usual as he mounted the platform and faced us. His long, black browed face was set in determined lines. He spoke slowly, enunciating each word clearly.

"You men," he began, "were chosen to come here because of your jungle combat experience and because you have escaped malaria. An order has been received, asking for volunteers for a very dangerous mission behind enemy lines. It will last six to eight weeks. It will not be in this theater of war. It will be several thousand miles away.

A Dangerous Mission.

"Those who go on this mission may not even be under American command. You may have British officers. Certainly you will be working side by side with the British. I want it understood that in calling for volunteers I am not advising any one to go on this mission. If you decide to go I hope you never will blame any one except yourselves for your decision. I repeat: It will be a very dangerous mission.

"You will be working behind enemy lines. Supplies will be uncertain at best. In all probability, there will be no medical aid except that which you can give yourselves. In a few words, you'll be cut off from the world you now know. The area in which you will find yourselves will be worse than any you have ever seen. I am not joking."

Gen. Krueger talked on, painting the prospects as black as possible. He left plenty of outs for those who might not want to go. Never, however, did he minimize the importance of the mission.

"This task will—if it succeeds—go down in history as a great and

Jabs Courtney on Sale Price of City Autos

Life was injected into the county political campaign yesterday when Republicans presented to State's Atty. Courtney's office facts and figures on trade-ins of used cars by the city of Chicago and Cook county. Courtney, the Democratic nominee for governor, has been investigating used car trade-ins by the automobile division of the state purchasing department.

John F. Tyrrell.

John F. Tyrrell, Republican state chairman, sent a letter to Courtney's first assistant, Wilbert F. Crowley, accompanied by photostatic copies of city records.

Tyrrell wrote that he assumed Crowley will be equally, if not more, interested in city and county automobile trade-ins than he appears to be in the state business. The city and county governments are ruled by Democrats.

State's Attorney Taunted.

"I realize that at this time the commander in chief of your office is at large in the state campaigning for another office while he continues to draw his salary from the people of Cook county," the letter states. "However, his limited legal experience may not be required in conducting a more extensive investigation. [Tyrrell explained that he was referring to allegations that Courtney had never tried a law suit, before he became state's attorney in 1932 or since.]

"I would like to point out that, because of the proximity of all of the records and places of business to your office, far less expense would be entailed in the investigation of city and county automobile trade-ins than the one you are currently pursuing.

Suggests Cleaning County's Stables.

"If the reports are correct that you also are investigating purchases other than of automobiles by the state government, I might suggest that the foregoing economical inquiry would also aid you in investigating all purchases by the city and county—for instance: the multiplicity of transactions involving cheap farms which developed into expensive purchases for forest preserve purposes.

"You may think that there is a political tinge to these suggestions, I assure you that this is no more true of my suggestions than it is of your present investigation of contracts executed solely within Sangamon county."

Tyrrell wrote that the city records show that in 1941, for example, the city traded in 98 Fords at an average of about $82 each, including one lot of 26 cars at $75 each. In 1942, the trade-in allowances for 38 ears averaged $144 each. In 1943, 97 Fords were traded in at allowances averaging $142 for each car, he wrote.

City Swap Prices.

This year, when a Ford passenger car was bought for $1,278, another Ford was traded in for only $50, Tyrrell added. Six police patrols were purchased in 1944 at $4,838 each, with trade allowances of only $250 each for similar vehicles, he continued.

County records show that during the last year there have been the following trade-in allowances: 1939 Lincoln, $125; 1939 Lincoln, $50; 3 Plymouth sedans at $306 each; 6 Chevrolets [1941 model] at $82 each; 2 Plymouths [1941] at $100 each, and 2 Plymouths [1942] at $138 each.

Crowley last week said the state had sold 1941 used cars at $265; 1940 at $185; 1939 models at $135, and 1938 models at $110.

DESTROYER AND TWO PATROL CRAFT LOST DURING HURRICANE

Washington, D. C., Sept. 17 (AP).—The navy announced tonight the loss of a destroyer and two small Coast Guard vessels in the recent Atlantic hurricane, with a heavy loss of lives on the destroyer.

The vessels were the 1,850 ton destroyer Warrington, with a complement of 230 men, and the Coast Guard vessels Jackson and Bedloe, both 125 foot patrol craft carrying about 35 men each. The navy did not divulge the location of the sinkings or the time.

Some survivors, including the destroyer's commanding officer, Comdr. Samuel Frank Quarles of Nathalie, Va., were picked up by rescue craft.

Lightship and Crew Missing.

Providence, R. I., Sept. 17 (AP).—The Coast Guard lightship Vineyard Sound has been missing from her position off the tip of Cuttyhunk Island in Vineyard sound since the hurricane on Thursday, it was learned today. Lt. Comdr. E. B. Sawtelle said tonight that "every effort is being made to locate the missing lightship," and its crew of about 12 men.

Ship Sunk in Collision.

Miami, Fla., Sept. 17 (AP).—Two allied vessels collided in the Atlantic a week ago and one of them sank in seven minutes.

All hands were saved, reported Capt. Arthur Jensen, 42, master of the lost ship, which flew the Panamanian flag. He and his crew of 30 were flown to Miami by army plane.

Officer with 18 Men Arranges Surrender of 20,000 Germans

BEAUGENCY, France, Sept. 16 [Delayed]—(AP).—Germany's footsore "lost army" of 20,000 troops, cut off while trying to escape from southern France to Germany, surrendered to the United States 9th army today without the price of a single American life or bullet in one of the strangest treks in military annals.

Stubby Maj. Gen. Erich Elsner who had led his motley assortment of marines, ground forces, and regular Nazi army troops all the way from the Spanish border trying to get them back to Germany, yielded them as prisoners of war in a simple but dramatic ceremony.

As he turned his legions over to the commander of the 83d division at the southern bank of the Loire river, they still bore the arms they had refused to lay down, until assured of the safety of American prison camps.

Feared French Vengeance.

Altho they were hopelessly trapped by a junction of the 3d and 7th armies and were being ground to pieces by harassing French Maquis and the pounding of United States 9th air force planes, the Nazi troops refused to agree to give up their arms until they reached the Loire river, because of their fear of French vengeance.

The surrender was arranged by young Lt. Samuel Magill of Ashtabula, O., reconnaissance officer who in daring forays with 18 men patroled a 1,200 mile stretch of German occupied territory south of the Loire, in which for the last fortnight they had been the only Americans.

Magill was standing behind his commanding general at 3:25 p. m. today when a group of camouflaged, commandeered French cars pulled up.

From the cars stepped the immaculately garbed Elsner and his bemedaled staff officers. They were at the head of a column of more than 6,000 German troops afoot or riding in commandeered peasant carts and worn out, bedraggled autos.

Others Approach Orleans.

Simultaneously another column of more than 7,000 recalcitrant marines, half unwilling to surrender without a further fight, was approaching Orleans and more than 6,000 air force soldiers were giving up in the vicinity of Mer, a Loire river village west of here.

As his staff fell back, Elsner stepped forward. At his side moved Lt. Col. Jules K. French of Merrifield, Va., who had been living for a week at the German command post as a liaison officer, and Capt. Habard, representing Col. Martell, leader of 3,000 French Maquis who had harassed the retreating Nazis all the way from Biarritz. There, on Aug. 26, Elsner had been given the job of organizing all Nazi troops along the Spanish border and the Bay if Biscay and leading them back to Germany.

Accepts for Gen. Simpson.

Macon and two officers by his side—Col. Edwin Crabill, Syracuse, N. Y., leader of the 329th infantry regiment, and Brig. Gen. O. P. Weyland of the 19th tactical air command, whose planes were major factors in convincing the Germans to surrender—saluted in return.

Acting for the commanding general of the 9th army—Lt. Gen. William H. Simpson—and in behalf of the army of the United States, Gen. Macon accepted the surrender.

Macon took the six shot revolver which Elsner handed him with a flourish and turned it over to his chief of staff. It will go to Gen. Simpson.

On the other side of the river, as he stood near a camouflaged Sherman tank waiting for an auto caravan to take him to the detention center, Elsner turned to an American chaplain and said: "I want to go to America as quickly as possible."

LANA TURNER'S BEY FRIEND AND HER 'EX' MIX IT

Hollywood, Cal., Sept. 17 [Special].—Lana Turner, blonde film actress, was one of the principals in Hollywood's latest battle Saturday night when her ex-husband, Stephen Crane, and Terhan Bey, young Turkish actor, grappled with each other at a Beverly Hills house party, an eyewitness disclosed today.

The witness said the battle started when Crane objected to Miss Turner wearing a diamond ruby ring he had given her in honor of their year old daughter, Cheryl Christine. Bey, current escort of Miss Turner, and Crane exchanged words on the dance floor. One word led to another, and the two men stepped out into the garden and began wrestling.

The ring was later turned over to a friend, it was reported, and Bey and the actress left the party. Miss Turner divorced Crane last Aug. 21 on the grounds that he behaved in a "sullen manner" and "nagged" her.

CHUTISTS AND GLIDER FORCES LAND AT RHINE

LONDON, Sept. 17 (AP).—Gen. Eisenhower unleashed the powerful 1st allied air borne army today, sending more than 1,000 air transport and glider loads into Holland at the northern tip of the Siegfried line in a bold attempt to skirt it and drive for Berlin.

The parachute and glider troops were reported in field dispatches to have driven the Germans from several Dutch towns near the German frontier.

Supreme headquarters did not say where the thousands of American, British, and Polish sky troopers landed, but the Germans said they hit Dutch soil in force at Nijmegen, 12 miles west and slightly north of where the already breached Siegfried line ends at Kleve.

[The Berlin radio announced today that additional allied airborne troops had been landed during the night near Moerpelt in the Eindhoven area in the Netherlands—apparently as reënforcement for forces previously reported landed in that area, a London dispatch reported.]

British 2d Army Attacks.

Simultaneously, the British 2d army broke across the Dutch frontier south of the landings in a great offensive timed with this first entirely air borne operation in military history.

The Germans said part of Lt. Gen. Lewis H. Brereton's air borne army came down at Tilburg and Eindhoven, eight to 10 miles inside Holland and close to where the British 2d is fighting up from the south.

A field dispatch said the British were two miles inside Holland driving toward those cities.

But the most important stroke appeared to have fallen at Nijmegen, which is on the Rhine and only six miles from the German frontier. Here Berlin is 315 miles to the east.

Some German accounts said the air borne army had landed on both the north and south banks of the Rhine at Nijmegen.

Hammer Toward Cologne.

From Kleve northward the Germans are believed to have counted on the North sea instead of a steel and concrete wall to balk invasion.

While it was believed only a matter of time until the combined weight of these air borne divisions and Lt. Gen. Miles C. Dempsey's British 2d army wheel on or around the Siegfried line, the United States 1st army was hammering away thru a hole in the fortifications 26 miles from the Rhineland city of Cologne.

The German controled Scandinavian telegraphic bureau quoted a German military spokesman as saying that tank battles were raging between allied forces and the Nazi defenders at Stolberg and Duren, towns more than 20 miles within Germany on the road from Aachen to Cologne. The dispatch referred to a particularly big battle at Duren, a road junction 20 miles southwest of Cologne.

German commanders fell back on old World War I. tactics and sent wave upon wave of infantry against Americans fighting on the German side of the Siegfried line east of Aachen and these were cut down in a storm of fire.

Waves of Foe Cut Down.

Official silence cloaked other American thrusts into Germany, mainly in the Prum and Trier areas south of Aachen.

On Lt. Gen. George S. Patton's front the 3d army fought thru rain on the approaches to the upper Rhineland toward the French city of Strasbourg and seized Luneville, 25 miles southeast of Nancy.

Metz, the holdout fortress on the Moselle river, was under continuous barrage. Tanks were crossing the muddy Moselle river south of the city.

Canadians on the French coast opened up an assault on the port of Boulogne, made some penetra-

Sky Troopers Take Enemy by Surprise

BY JUDSON O'QUINN.

ADVANCE HDQ., TROOP CARRIER COMMAND IN EUROPE, Sept. 17 (AP).—Lt. Gen. Lewis H. Brereton, commander of the 1st allied air borne army, and all his staff officers were elated tonight at the success of the unit's first exploit, today's air invasion of the Netherlands.

The entire operation, which I witnessed from a Fortress observation plane, was declared a complete success by senior staff officers. The percentage of losses in the C-47 skytrains that carried paratroops was the lowest of any air borne operations in the war to date.

"Successful beyond all expectations," was the comment of Col. Glynne M. Jones. "We definitely had the element of surprise," said Jones, the plans and operations officer of the troop carrier command. The command is headed by Maj. Gen. Paul L. Williams. Brereton and Williams flew with the spearhead for personal observation.

Only a Few Planes Downed.

Observers over the entire operations said only a few of the hundreds of C-47s which carried the paratroopers were downed by antiaircraft fire or the few Nazi planes which braved our overwhelming fighter escort.

This first action of the 1st allied air borne army was carried out in daylight only a few minutes after noon in Holland.

Planners said that 17 earlier plans for an air borne invasion had been scrapped because ground forces advanced too quickly or weather was not favorable and declared that this was the most successful operation that they could have hoped for.

Negligible Opposition.

Parachute troops and glider borne infantry men landed with negligible opposition in Holland.

I watched troop carrier command, one of Brereton's units, drop thousands of parachutists from hundreds of C-47 Douglas transports. The multicolored parachutes glittered gaily in the bright noon-day sun, as they fluttered to the earth with men, arms, and supplies for this latest blow at Germany.

Fly in Low Formations.

Flying in tight, low formations, these sky-trains slipped over the coast of Holland from the North sea and reached the drop area before the Nazis, caught flatfooted, manned their anti-aircraft guns.

By the time the second and third formations of C-47s began dropping, light flak was shooting up into the sky fleets. One burst raised the Flying Fortress in which I was riding as an observation plane, leaving one small hole in the tail. Another piece missed our wing.

I saw only one C-47 go down and it appeared to be under control.

We did not see a single German fighter and the only air field I saw was so pockmarked with bomb craters it was unusable.

Hundreds of fighters circled around our long sky train which extended for miles in straight lines of troop transports, tow planes, and gliders.

The parachute troops in the sector I watched from the plane, appropriately named "Liberty Run," dropped into fields flanking a Dutch town and judging from the ease with which we dropped them they should have been able to assemble quickly to carry out their ground objectives.

We circled the paratroop drop area and saw parachutes and supplies neatly lying close together on the ground. In a sector not far away gliders were settling to earth when we headed back toward the coast.

The only signs of Germans we saw was a column of trucks marked with red croses on a country road.

MARINES GAIN FOOTHOLD ON PELELIU PEAK

PACIFIC FLEET HDQ., Pearl Harbor, Sept. 17 (AP).—Speeding their conquest of the southern Palau Islands, marines advanced northward one-third of a mile on Peleliu Saturday and army troops occupied the entire northeast curve of Angaur Island, on which they landed today.

The third day of fighting on Peleliu was preceded like the others by bombing and naval gunfire, a navy bulletin issued tonight announced. Enemy opposition on Peleliu was heavy thruout the day, with the Japanese using artillery and mortars in considerable numbers.

Most of the movements on Peleliu were in a pivotal pattern from the left flank, the three-day advances ranging from a comparatively short distance on the left to 3,500 yards on the right.

Elements of the 81st infantry division, which landed at two points on the north and nortneast sectors of Angaur Island, quickly joined their beachheads inland more than 1,000 yards. Opposition was light.

Tokio Admits Landing.

Tokio radio admitted the Angaur landing and added "Latest information from the spot says fighting is taking place in the coastal area."

Adm. Nimitz' headquarters said yesterday that marines captured the airstrip on Peleliu, killed 1,400 Japanese, and advanced steadily against strong counter-attacks by the remainder of the 8,000 enemy troops on the island.

The fleet supporting the Angaur invasion was under command of Rear Adm. Purnell Blandy of New York. Maj. Gen. Paul J. Mueller led the troops.

Angaur has an area of only 3 square miles. It is heavily wooded, with cliffs along the shore, but has no high peaks. It is protected by a reef half a mile from the beaches. A strait 5½ miles wide separates Angaur from other islands in the group.

Division's First Action.

The port, with a radio station, pier, and buildings of the mining company, are on the western side at a village named Saipan, same as that of the island captured in the Marianas. There is no air field on Angaur.

Adm. Blandy commanded an amphibious group at Saipan Island. He now commands group 1 amphibious forces of the Pacific. Gen. Mueller was chief of staff for the 2d army under Lt. Gen. Ben Lear until he assumed command of the "Wildcat" [81st] division two years ago. The division is seeing its first action of World War II. It served in France during World War I. but was not reconstituted until two years ago.

Win Hold on Mountain.

ABOARD U. S. FLAGSHIP OFF PELELIU ISLAND, Sept. 17 (AP).—The 1st marine division won a foothold today on "bloody nose"—sharp-ridged Umorbrogul mountain on Peleliu Island.

These sharp, coral ridge lines were the core of the well planned Japanese defense in depth north of Peleliu airdrome.

In the initial assault against this "bloody nose," the 1st marine regiment was driven back under heavy Japanese mortar and artillery fire. Col. Lewis B. Puller of Saluda, Va., was in command. In their second drive, the marine attackers scrambled up the coral rock and stayed.

Cleaning out the ridge of lurking Japanese elements will be "a slow, painful process," said a spokesman in headquarters of Maj. Gen. Roy S. Geiger, commander of the amphibious assault troops.

Tanks Charge Pillboxes.

The Nipponese maintained gun and mortar fire on the air field behind the 1st regiment. Puller's men made a substantial gain on the left flank along the shore. They also

At the end of the island, Col. Herman H. Hanneken's 7th marine regiment ran into a tough nest of pillboxes and mortars. With heavy air and artillery support, Hanneken was able to get his tanks against the pillboxes.

During the night the Japanese tried their typical infiltration of American lines. The next morning 20 dead Nipponese were counted around Hanneken's command post.

In a similar night attack near the command post of the 1st division, a husky marine grabbed the rifle of one of the Japanese and killed its owner with the bayonet. The marine then used the rifle to club down a second Japanese. He threw the latter's body at a third attacker.

Japs Claim 60 Ships Sunk.

New York, Sept. 17 (AP).—The Japanese new agency Domei in a Toyko broadcast tonight said the Americans were pouring reinforcements ashore on Peleliu Island despite heavy casualties. More than 60 American vessels had been sunk and more than 50 tanks stranded on the beach, it was claimed.

"Enemy battleships continued to fire salvo after salvo which totaled more than 10,000 shells," it added. "Enemy planes which darkened the skies over the battle area rained bombs on our positions. In the face of this attack our forces repeatedly carried out charges and frustrated attempts to expand his beachhead."

Destroy 3 Jap Ships.

ALLIED HDQ., New Guinea, Sept. 18 (Monday)—(AP).—Three Japanese ships were destroyed and another beached in aerial attacks on Celebes and Ceram, headquarters announced today.

A 3,000 ton transport was destroyed at Celebes, 200 miles west of Halmahera, and two coastal vessels were sunk at Ceram, where a 1,500 ton craft was beached by allied air fire.

Allied objectives on the perimeter of Morotai Island, invaded Friday, have been reached, today's bulletin reported. A tight allied air cover was maintained, and bombers crashed 290 tons of bombs on adjacent Halmahera Island, concentrating upon Japanese airdromes.

Army engineers already are shaping the Pitoe air field on Morotai for allied use in further bombing attacks, while infantry patrols plunge toward the hills where elements of the Japanese garrison have fled.

EX-GRID STAR HERE FREED AS WAR PRISONER

Staff Sgt. Robert J. Harper, 22, of 2243 Foster av., photographer on a B-24 bomber, reported missing in action last June 11 and later reported a prisoner in Bulgaria after his plane was shot down near Giurgui on the Romanian-Bulgarian border, is no longer a prisoner and has been restored to military control, his step-father, Walter M. Crossland, was informed yesterday by the war department. Harper, who attended Amundsen High school under the name of Crossland, was a star full back there.

HORSEMAN KILLED BY TRAIN.

St. Louis, Mo., Sept. 17 (AP).—James McClaud, 19, Wolf Lake, Ill., died in a St. Louis hospital today of injuries suffered yesterday when his horse became frightened and ran into the side of a freight train at Dupo, Ill.

ONLY 3 WOUNDED ON MOROTAI; 33 JAPS ARE KILLED

Only Fighting on Isle Is Skirmish.

BY ARTHUR VEYSEY.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

WITH U. S. 6TH ARMY ON MOROTAI, Halmahera Islands, Sept. 16 [Delayed].—The big job of turning a tropical island into a base from which to attack the Philippines began here this morning as patrols probing as far as five miles inland swept clean the jungle and plantations.

During the first 24 hours patrols had only three skirmishes but learned the island's garrison—estimated at about 200 Japs—had pulled atop a hill a few miles inland, where artillery and bombers were working them over.

Yesterday a patrol found nine Japs in a pillbox and in killing them suffered three men injured. After dark 15 Japs attacked an outlying patrol. When the firing stopped six Japs lay dead. Our patrol was intact. Again this morning a patrol encountered six Japs, killed five, and captured the sixth. Scattered over miles 13 other Japs have been killed, reaching a total of 33. That was the extent of the fighting.

Jap Drops 2 Bombs.

During the night a lone plane scouted the blacked out island and after dawn a lone raider dropped two bombs, but hit nothing. Fighters from our carriers chased him to sea and shot him down between here and Halmahera.

As infantrymen, their job done, start building lean-tos for quarters until tents arrive, engineers take over the war, building roads, air strips, and docks. The harbor today was full of ships. Overhead Lt. Jerry Mills was circling in his Cub plane, the first American ever to fly from the spice island of Morotai.

Yesterday the native village of Doroeba rose behind the beach, neat houses of woven bamboo set in rows along a picket fenced street. At the intersection of streets was a bulletin board with Dutch language notices and a hollowed log serving as an alarm.

Mistaken for Leper Colony.

Today the village is in ashes. Bedsteads, chairs, and one sewing machine rise from the embers. A captain ordered it burned. This was a leper colony, he explained. Dutchmen arriving with the army said he apparently confused Morotai with Molokai leper colony off Hawaii.

The natives were still in the hills. Lt. Gen. L. H. Van Oyen, commander of the Dutch Indies army, said this morning that when the natives return the Dutch will pay them for their losses and help them rebuild. A Japanese missionary and his family, the only non-natives, were found in a dugout, he with a deep cheek wound from a final beating inflicted by the Japs before they fled.

Portable docks, supported by pontoons, now run from the ships to shore, enabling G. I.'s to drive out capacity laden trucks, huge bulldozers, sand scoops, and other mechanized equipment which is now being used to build roads.

Strike at Japs

They were en route to homes in Illinois, Michigan, Indiana, and Pennsylvania.

British Coast Guns Fire on German Escape Ships

LONDON, Sept. 17 (AP).—British coastal guns blasted today at Nazi escape ships off Calais, evoking a feeble reply from the big guns still in German hands on the continent. The firing broke a 30 hour lull in the cross channel shelling.

IT'S SMALL WAR ON PELELIU, BUT JUST AS NASTY

BY HAROLD SMITH.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PELELIU, Palau Islands, Sept. 17.—It may be a little war as judged against the big show in Europe, but it is a nasty, hurting war nonetheless, as you learn from a night spent ashore in marine headquarters.

You lie in a foxhole while mortars and snipers take picks at you and spend an hour locating the command post, which seems to move every time you get close. With unidentified enemy shells screaming overhead, you bat out your story, which probably won't go until tomorrow anyway, and then you give first priority to your trench for the night.

You dig the last few shovels full by starlight and then stretch your carcass on the ground to take advantage of the slightest breeze, somewhat disappointed because your digging in was in vain. You sleep to the accompaniment of rattling shellfire, which seems like 200 yards ahead. By midnight the cold wakes you, and you swathe yourself in a poncho and drop off to sleep again.

Bullets Spray About.

Later you wake suddenly and with amazement find yourself enfolded and tangled up in the poncho and knuckles barked raw on the coral sands. A machine gun immediately to the rear is spraying bullets four feet or so from your head, and you thank the instinct which prompts you to take cover and sleep, a trait that becomes highly developed as the war wears on.

Suddenly you know it's 6:15, dawn is just breaking, and hell has broken loose around you. The Japs are counter-attacking, so you scrunch to the foxhole bottom, waiting for daylight and rooting for the marines who are bearing the brunt out there.

Evil little bursts of Jap light machinegun fire rip the air in a semicircle ahead and with the call of "corpsman," you know they are not just playing "Dixie."

You scrunch as big mortar shells burst very close, tossing a hot crumb of metal on your bare chest. You lie helplessly, listening just before they hit, and the instant the abbreviated clap rocks the ground you prepare to advance.

Attack Is Halted.

It is broad daylight and there is a brief lull during which you notice that the small arms fire has stopped. Later you learn the counter-attack was halted 100 yards from our command post.

Suddenly the mortars come in thicker than ever, and with them you hear a new echoing sound of heavy enemy shells bursting nearby. The creek of doom, 30 feet to the right, tosses up a dark geyser, and corpsmen carry out three corpses and three broken bodies which were healthy marines a few minutes ago.

But the war has come even closer when two bandsmen in their foxhole 20 feet away are badly wounded by shell fragments. You note they were in holes 10 feet away from a brigadier general who is directing operations ashore.

Down 100 feet the boys kill a ground sniper who had filtered thru the line. Your writing this morning is interrupted by the noisy killing of a Jap sniper in a palm tree, who has been winging shots overhead sporadically since dayligth.

Peleliu's defenders are selling ground slowly at a steadily mounting cost to us. By numerous tokens they are showing how important Palau is to them, not only because it is the seat of the mandated government, but because it is the key point of the enemy's inner defense line.

Commanders emphasized that the light landing casualties should not be taken as a measure of the total price we may pay for Peleliu, and the swelling total of our dead and wounded gave grim emphasis to the warning. Nevertheless, our total casualties tonight were considerably below the estimated Jap dead.

It is the impression of the observer in coverage of six previous island conquests that our fighters now are meeting considerably less small arms fire, with correspondingly more artillery and mortar punishment. On no previous Central Pacific assault since Tarawa has the enemy concentrated counter-fire so heavily on an amphibious landing. These gave some foretaste of the stiffening defenses we can expect to encounter as we approach the Nips' home islands.

Thank Carrier Crews.

Ground troops were breathing little prayers of thankfulness for the efficiency of our navy carriers' crews and long range army bombers, which have neutralized enemy landing fields so effectively that their first night ashore was raidless. Still, they are holding their fingers crossed in remembrance of the Nips' nuisance raids on Saipan Island for the first few nights after our landing there.

SIX CHICAGO FLYERS BACK IN U. S. AFTER 50 RAIDS UPON JAPS

Kweilin Field Destroyed and Abandoned.

KUNMING, China, Sept. 17 (AP).—The United States 14th air force has destroyed and virtually abandoned its air bases near Kweilin, provisional capital of invaded Kwangsi province, it was disclosed today, in the face of a grave Japanese threat to the whole structure of the American military effort in this country.

Chinese reverses in the Hunan-Kwangsi area in recent months have brought a critical re-evaluation of the Chinese war potential. The reverses are put down to ineptness and confusion of command, lack of integrated communications, and many other deficiencies.

[The Chinese high command said one of four Japanese columns striking westward from Canton had pushed to within 53 miles of Kweilin, while farther north a column from Hunan province split at Taohsien, 90 miles east of Kweilin. One element pressed on west for a frontal assault while the other cut southwest in an apparent attempt to encircle the city from the south.]

Runways Are Blasted.

Only one Kweilin strip is being preserved for forward fighter operation. All installations that would be of value to the enemy have been dynamited or burned. Heavy bombs were planted in three runways, all of which were blasted into an unusable state.

Equipment and supplies and all American personnel, including nurses and hospital cases, were evacuated to southeastern bases from which bombers and fighters are continuing to operate.

Long months of diligent and expensive American and Chinese effort to make the Kweilin bases the strongpoint of southeastern China went up in smoke and debris.

Chinese handling of the present Japanese drive has resulted in collapse of plans for the defense of Kweilin.

Mistaken Orders Issued.

A 14th air force officer said a shining exception to the story of ineptitude has been the performance of Gen. Hsueh Yueh, commander of the 9th war zone. Pitifully undermarmed, his men were used to the strongest advantage. But now the brunt of battle has passed from the 9th to the 4th, 6th, and 7th war zones.

Chungking has issued orders which have indicated a disregard or a lack of knowledge of field situations. An example was the decimation of one army which evidently for reasons of "face" was ordered to drive back into the Hunan railway city of Hengyang when it might have been digging in for the defense of Kweilin.

This army disintegrated and survivors took to the hills to fight on as guerrillas.

As an example of the Chinese confusion, 200 Japanese or puppet plain clothesmen lured a whole division into position for destructive flanking attacks by a major Japanese force near Hengyang.

The little artillery the Chinese had, including a few pack howitzers which the Americans furnished for training, was used in an ineffective manner.

Chinese infantry has been thrown into an attack simply for the sake of attacking, with no specific mission. On one such occasion they were chopped to pieces by Japanese machine gunners.

8 CONGRESSMEN ANGRY AT BAN ON FRANCE TRIP

LONDON, Sept. 17 (AP).—Eight United States congressmen—critical of what they termed the army's stalling tactics—have appealed directly to Gen. Eisenhower for permission to visit France. If refused, they say they will ask why visiting labor leaders have been given preferred treatment.

The congressmen went into an irritated huddle to plan their strategy for getting quick action after some of them were informed that the trip has been called off. The representatives said they bitterly resent any intimation that they are on a sightseeing tour.

BULGARS BEAT YANK PRISONERS, MAJOR ASSERTS

Treatment Improved as Reds Neared.

BARI, Italy, Sept. 17 (AP).—American flyers in Bulgaria were beaten and imprisoned by their captors in efforts to make them disclose vital information, a major in command of 350 airmen declared on their return here today.

The airmen—recently freed from a prisoner of war camp in Bulgaria after being shot down over the Balkans—also were threatened with a firing squad and were half-starved by camp officials attempting to make them talk, the major said. The American officer declared they were confined to their prison quarters during allied air raids.

Their release followed Bulgaria's withdrawal from the war.

The atrocities were committed mostly by Bulgarian soldiers and a few civilians, the major related, but everything changed as the Russian army neared the Bulgarian borders. Daily treatment and food improved until finally the allied airmen were released.

Included in the group of 350 airmen were 295 Americans. Thirty-six of these were stretcher cases. Twenty-one others still are ill. The remainder included British, Yugoslavs, Dutch, Poles, Greeks, and Italians.

"Surly and mean prison guards," the major said, "hit our flyers in the face with rifle butts. Some were beaten badly with sticks and in at least one case rubber hose was used. The boys were beaten about the head and shoulders with pistols and rifle butts. There were many slaps and kicks and generally rough treatment."

Three flyers who bailed out and landed in Bulgaria were shot after reaching the ground, the major said, adding "one died and the other two were hurt badly."

POLISH-SOVIET DISPUTE NEARS A SHOWDOWN

Exile Cabinet Change Appears Certain.

BY WILLIAM STRAND.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Sept. 17.—With the Russians finally moving in the direction of Warsaw and the battle for the capital apparently nearing its final stage, it seems inevitable that the tedious Polish-Russian dispute which has bedeviled allied leaders for weeks is approaching a showdown.

It appears likely that there will have to be a cabinet shuffle in the London exiled government because its present complexion is clearly unsuitable to the Russians, hence, also unsuitable to the British.

Some diplomatic observers believe that Russia, doubtful of securing proper submissiveness from the London government, may follow her own line and recognize the rival governing body, the National Committee of Liberation in Lublin as the provisional Polish government.

Lublin Defiance Suggested.

The recent agreement reached between the Ukrainians and the White Russians and the Lublin committee over the exchange of populations suggests that the liberation committee is preparing to defy the London exiles by taking over the functions of government while there still is time.

Polish circles here are basing strong hopes on another review of the situation by the Americans and British following the Quebec conference. On the other hand it is noted that Stalin was not at that meeting.

Well informed sources say Stalin does not object to having Stanislaw Mikolajczyk, the exile premier, as the head of some form of compromise government but is not inclined to make any concessions beyond the agreement already signed with the Lublin committee. But officials who will have to go include Commander in Chief Sosnowski who has become everybody's whipping boy since he accused the British of failing to send proper aid to the Warsaw Underground fighting the Nazis.

Supplies Dropped.

Meanwhile the dropping of supplies to the Warsaw insurgents by the Russians and the appearance of Russian aircraft over the city seems likely to soothe the ruffled feelings of the underground leaders who have accused Stalin of refusing to help them because of their allegiance to the London government.

Gen. Bor, commander of the Warsaw garrison, has sent a warm message to Marshal Rokossovsky, the Russian commander who led the assault upon Praga. Bor outlined a detailed plan for coöperation between the two armies, making a distinct change from the cold aloofness with which the Poles and Russians have viewed one another in the past.

RED PUSH NEARS LATVIA CAPITAL, SAYS NAZI RADIO

LONDON, Sept. 18 [Monday]—(AP).—Russian troops have fought their way within 14 miles of Riga, Latvian capital on the Baltic sea, in a new offensive aimed at crushing two German armies in Latvia and Estonia, estimated at 200,000 men, Berlin broadcasts said last night.

Berlin broadcasts said that 400,000 Russians strongly supported by tanks and planes were trying to annihilate the Nazi 16th and 18th armies under Col. Gen. Georg Lindemann in Latvia and Estonia.

Soviet forces were said to have driven a wedge thru German lines to Baldone, 14 miles southeast of Riga.

Other Forces Close In.

A Nazi commentator, Col. Ernst von Hammer, reported that a strong soviet group also was attacking toward Riga from Madona in the east.

In Estonia the Russians were reported to have outflanked Valga on the north and reached a point 58 miles east of the Gulf of Riga.

Moscow reported the capture of five localities in the drive on Targu-Mures, German-Hungarian stronghold in Transylvania. Russian troops were within four miles of the city.

See New Blow at Hungary.

Walter Plato, a Nazi radio commentator, said that soviet troops were massing near Hungary's southeastern frontier in the area north of Turnu-Severin, Romanian Danube city which the Russians took on Sept. 6.

German broadcasts told of heavy fighting in the Turda sector, 13 miles south of Cluj, Transylvanian capital.

The Red army's many sided drive on Hungary, last big axis satellite, was accompanied by heavy air attacks on rail centers, Moscow said. On Saturday night long range soviet bombers struck Satu-Mare, 80 miles northwest of Cluj, and Csap, 50 miles northwest of Satu-Mare. Fires were started and trains and fuel dumps blasted.

Moscow was silent on the progress of the 3d Ukraine army, which rolled thru Sofia, Bulgaria, on Saturday toward Yugoslavia.

GERMAN WAR BULLETIN.

The German army's broadcast report said yesterday:

"In south Transylvania, at Thorenburg and Neumarkt, German and Hungarian troops repulsed fierce soviet attacks.

"Between Sanok and Krosno the enemy continues his attacks, using fresh forces. They were repulsed.

"To the northeast of Warsaw, German and Hungarian troops achieved a full defensive success against attacking Russians. Thirty-one enemy tanks were knocked out.

"To the southwest of Jelgava [Latvia] an armored attack group penetrated into the enemy lines and rolled them up.

"To the north of Bauska [Latvia] counter-attacks are under way. Two hundred and thirty-four soviet tanks were destroyed in the last three days in fighting here."

Reds Demand Spain and Portugal Break with Nazis

MOSCOW, Sept. 17 (AP).—The soviet press demanded today that Spain and Portugal break off relations with Germany, a review in Red Fleet charging that both countries were "continuing to give aid to German Fascists." "The Spanish servants of Hitler must hasten to assure the world that they have nothing in common with the Nazis," Red Fleet said. "However, not words but deeds will decide the question."

FINLAND READY, TO WAR ON NAZIS, ITS PRESS SAYS

Germans Fire Towns in Withdrawing.

STOCKHOLM, Sweden, Sept. 17 (AP).—A state of war exists between Finland and Germany and a formal declaration may come almost without notice, the Finnish press declared tonight.

The Finnish cabinet met tonight while a storm of anger swept over Helsinki because the Germans applied the torch to northern Finnish villages and farm homes as they withdrew.

Hundreds of women and children were compelled to watch as their homes went up in flames in the Suomusaalmi district, and at Kuusamo, south of the arctic circle near the Russian frontier.

Back Up Truce Terms.

Finnish newspapers unanimously said Finland was "prepared to face all consequences" arising from her arrangements in making a truce with Russia, which included a promise to intern and disarm any Germans still in Finland after Sept. 15. A Finnish source here said two Finnish brigades already were fighting the Germans in northern Finland.

[The German agency Transocean said Nazi withdrawal had been completed from Kandalaksha, east of the pre-war Russian-Finnish boundary, and had been "very much hindered" by the Russians.]

"Foreign planes" appeared over Stockholm tonight, military authorities said, and anti-aircraft went into action. There were no reports of bombs dropped.

Earlier in the day two German destroyers fired at a Finnish passenger plane flying over the Gulf of Bothnia. Presence of the vessels supported reports the Germans were attempting to blockade Finland.

Russian Demands Told.

Russia was reported demanding the right to occupy the northern half of Finland.

The first Swedish correspondent to return to Stockholm since Russian terms were carried to Helsinki also declared the soviets insisted that Finland declare war on Germany.

Gunnar Mullern, correspondent for the Aftonbladet, said the Russians want air bases in northern and central Finland and along the western coast for the duration of the war with Germany, and are demanding most of the islands in the Finnish gulf.

While the terms were considered harsh, Mullern said that C. J. A. Emckell, foreign minister, believed there was a chance to bargain on several points and for that reason went to Moscow.

[The condition of Prime Minister Hantti Hackzell, chief of the Finnish armistice delegation, who was stricken in Moscow, has become more grave and he has developed pneumonia, Moscow reported.]

THE MARAUDERS! HOW JAP TERROR CAME INTO BEING

Veteran Jungle Fighters Compose New Unit.

important contribution toward the success of the war. It will affect thousands far from the theater in which you will fight. It should be finished in from six to eight weeks. There will be good chances for promotion in the new organization, which will be known as composite unit 5307.

"We ask for volunteers. But heed this warning: If you volunteer, there will be no backing out. Don't come back tomorrow or next week and say you have reconsidered. Once you are in, men, you are IN! Do your thinking now."

The general took a step backward and looked out over our heads. It was a perfect morning of brilliant sunlight and blue skies; a morning to lift the spirits of any man. We thought over the things Gen. Krueger had said. It sounded like a chance to do something that would really count. It was a chance to get away from our fussy C. O. I know nothing against him, but he didn't suit my mood.

Fighting Sergeant Busted.

I had tangled with him soon after our return from Guinea. There I had been an acting sergeant and had gotten along fine with the men. I had handled men in civil life and I knew how. I simply told them what I wanted done—without any military frills—and they did it. There is no parade ground formality in the jungle. I refused to change my way of doing things and the C. O. busted me to a private. In a courteous and military manner, of course. I had worked back up to private first class by this time, but I could see no future under our present boss.

Gen. Krueger remained silent about a minute. There was time for the fellows to talk a little among themselves. I could hear them saying to one another:

"Should we go?" . . . "Are you going?" . . . "I'll go if you will." And so on. The talk stopped abruptly as Gen. Krueger stepped forward again.

"We will start with the privates," he said. "Privates of headquarters company who wish to volunteer for duty with composite unit 5307 will step forward." He indicated an open space over at his left. With several of the fellows near by, I stepped out of ranks and over to the open space.

I often have wondered if I would have done so if I had known what I know today. I expected adventure and rough going, but on that sunshiny morning in Australia I had absolutely no conception of what lay ahead.

In the months to come we were to swelter in steaming jungles and see our companions shot and blown to bits before our eyes. We were to scale 8,000 foot mountain peaks carrying 80 pounds of pack and rifle and narrowly escape destruction as loaded pack animals hurtled end over end down the almost perpendicular trail to shoot out into space over chasms. In that climb we sweated thru the days, holding onto bushes and bamboo stalks as we climbed, then almost froze at night, sleeping in positions that were practically vertical.

Japs Always at Hand.

Many of us contracted a deadly typhus fever against which our inoculations were no protection. Of those stricken, two out of three died. And the Japs almost always were just around the bend of the trail or in the trees immediately over our heads. For more than 100 days we were to be at combat tension with no relaxation. In the fierce fighting some men were blinded and others went out of their heads. But if anyone suggested to me there in Australia that such things lay ahead I would have laughed at him. I thought I knew all about jungle warfare.

"Privates of the rifle company." It was Gen. Krueger, calling for the next group of volunteers. Several men came forward. "Weapons company privates." A group of mortar men joined us. Gen. Krueger went on thru the list: Corporals, sergeants, and so on. When he had finished, 150 men stood in the open space.

The general dismissed the remaining 250 men after warning them to forget what they had seen and heard; to speak of it to no one. Our names were taken, then we were ordered to strip—right there on the parade ground—and the waiting medical officers had at us in one of the most thoro examinations I have ever had. They checked and rechecked; eyes, ears, nose, mouth, throat, pulse, respiration, blood pressure—everything.

Then they examined us from head to toe for skin rashes. The slightest eruption meant rejection. My sun glasses almost spoiled my chances. The doc wanted to know why I was wearing them. I said because the sun was bright. This appeared to mystify him. He took them off me, peered thru them, put them on and stared about, then reëxamined my eyes before passing me.

Flip for Chance—to Die.

The division was reluctant to lose any more men than necessary. The doctors had been told to be strict. When two top sergeants passed, they flipped a coin to see who would go, since only one was needed. The winner was killed in our first skirmish.

Around the end of September we moved to new quarters in the camp and adopted our new designation, composite unit 5307. There were about 600 of us by now, Gen. Krueger having sent new recruits from New Guinea. Our commander for the time was Maj. Edwin J. Briggs of La Grande, Ore. I was promoted to corporal. On Oct. 3 we were put on the alert, forbidden to leave the area, and were equipped with new clothing. Five days later the word came.

We moved by truck train to the docks where lay our old friend, the transport which had brought us from San Francisco to Australia nearly 18 months before. In those days we had called it the S. S. Lollypop because each night as we left the dining hall civilian stewards handed us chocolate ice cream bars on sticks. There were none of these now, but the coffee remained just as good as it ever had been. The civilian cooks must have imparted their secrets to the mess sergeants before leaving. We often thought longingly of that coffee. We sailed the same night, Oct. 8, 1943.

The ultimate group included troops from Trinidad, Panama, and Puerto Rico. We marched ashore to the music of an Aussie band. The transport took on great stores of food and water. We sailed the next morning. We had been told nothing of our destination, but as we continued sailing it dawned upon us that we were going to India. And India it was. We anchored on Oct. 30 and lay unloading until the evening of Oct. 31, when some of the more impatient lads shinnied down ropes and paid a roistering Hallowe'en visit, returning with much refreshments, internal and external. They made the M. P.s very unhappy.

Another Phase Begins.

On the morning of Nov. 1 we marched ashore and went aboard long, rickety wooden passenger trains drawn up near the docks. Each coach seated about 22 men on its three rows of benches. Our train started with a jerk that should have torn it asunder. It rolled two blocks and stopped. Beggars swarmed about outside, crying: "Boxie! Boxie!", which means "Gimme! Gimme!"—or its equivalent. They were made up to appear most pitiful and we gave them cigarets and candy until we found it was all an act and that they were ungrateful.

The filth and squalor of the slums we saw is indescribable. We were surprised the English would allow such things to exist. We were told they had tried to improve the standard of living, but that the Indians will not change. After stops at practically every street corner, we rolled at last into the clear, cool night among little farms and rice paddies. We broke out the supper unit of our K rations—about which more later—and after eating began to hope we would not have to sleep on the rattling, lurching train.

We stopped as tho we had hit a mountain. We were alongside a large enclosure. It turned out to be an English military camp. There already were a number of British troops stationed there. We learned very quickly always to say "British" troops. The Scotch, Irish, Welsh, Canadians, and Australians resent bitterly being referred to as "English."

As we started marching thru the gates we encountered a reception that surprised us at first, then angered us until we learned the reason behind it.

The 15th air force heavy bombers hit the rail yards at Rakos, Kobanya, and Ferencvaro, important to the Nazis for use in connection with the fighting in Hungary and the Balkans. The Magyar and Shell refineries in Budapest were the other targets. Mustangs and Lightnings escorted the Italian-based bombers.

HERO OF WORLD WAR II. LEARNS DEEDS OF WAR I.

1st Division Vets Gather at Annual Reunion.

BY JAMES DOHERTY.

Sgt. Rolfe Bjerke, 5059 Oakdale av., who has seen service as a member of the First Division in the present world war, became a member last night of the First Division society, an organization formed of vets of the first World war. Sgt. Bjerke learned of the fame, the heroism and the accomplishments of the First Division vets of the last war thru the speeches of three men, Lt. Gen. Charles P. Summerall, Maj. Gen. Frank Parker, and Col. Robert R. McCormick.

Summerall, Parker, and McCormick are all veterans of the first war. They, with 400 others, were having a reunion in the Hotel Sherman last night, after Col. McCormick, editor and publisher of THE TRIBUNE, had entertained several hundred of his buddies at Cantigny farm, near Wheaton, during the afternoon.

Devotion on Battle Field.

Gen. Parker's talk to the veterans was short and to the point. The men of the 1st were all heroes; they were together because of the devotion to each other that came to them on the battle field.

Col. McCormick paid great tribute to Generals Parker and Summerall.

"I came to the 1st division originally for instruction," Col. McCormick recalled. "It had not then won its invincible name. Later I was assigned to command the 1st battalion field artillery. When Gen. Summerall was assigned to command the division I made inquiries about him.

"I learned that at the siege of Pekin our fire was directed at the gates of the city but our shells did no damage. It was not until the then Lt. Summerall walked up to the gate and made a chalk mark on its cross beam that it was smashed in and the Americans got into the city ahead of the Japs.

"Take Care of Your Men."

"In the winter of 1917 we were at maneuvers in the coldest rain I have ever encountered. We were told by Gen. Robert L. Bullard, 'Take care of your men before you seek warmth for yourselves.'

"It was there I saw the greatest example of moral courage I have ever encountered. A trench raid was ordered and prepared. By mistake, a bandalore torpedo which was to be fired under the German wire failed to arrive. Gen. Parker had the moral courage to countermand the raid which could not have succeeded.

"GHQ called up and wanted the name of the officer responsible for the failure of the raid. Gen. Bullard said he alone, as the commander, was responsible.

"The men of the 1st division were blessed with the leadership of the greatest fighting soldier I have ever heard of, Gen. Charles P. Summerall."

Gen. Summerall complimented all the men of the old First. He said Pershing remarked that the First was always sent where the danger was greatest. It went to the corps that needed it most, he said.

Praises Great Heart.

"It was the great heart in the men of the division that made you so powerful," Gen. Summerall told them. "I know most of you expected not to come back. You consecrated your lives to victory. It's the noblest thing a man can do, to give his life for others, for his country, his home. You men are deserving of the best."

The vets voted to take into their membership those now serving in the present First division. Sergt. Bjerke, home on leave, said he regarded it as a great honor to be the first accepted.

Hunt Gunman on Charge of Rape on South Side

Police last night conducted a city-wide search for a Negro gunman who seized a married woman in the hall of her apartment on the near south side, forced her into her home and raped her. The woman said the Negro threatened to kill her if she attempted to arouse her two children who were asleep in an adjoining room.

DEFEAT OF NAZIS MAY FREE MORE CIVILIAN GAS

Washington, D. C., Sept. 17 [Special].—The end of the war in Europe should reduce military use of gasoline sufficiently to permit more gasoline for civilians, the petroleum industry war council, which represents the oil industry in the office of the petroleum administrator for war, said today.

Even a continuation of global war thru the winter should find oil resources now available to the allied nations "adequate to meet war military and essential civilian needs," the report stated.

It also injected an unfamiliar note in war petroleum statements by saying that the present high level of heavy fuel oil stocks might lead to an oversupply problem should victory in Europe bring about a substantial curtailment of industrial activity.

HULL INDORSES MOVE FOR WORLD PRESS FREEDOM

Washington, D. C., Sept. 17 (AP).—With the senate likely to act this week on a resolution calling on this country to take the lead in espousing international exchange of independent news as a means of promoting world peace, the Associated Press today submitted the following questions to Secretary of State Hull:

"In view of the developing widespread interest on the subject of international news freedom, is there any thought that you would care to express about your own views on this subject?"

Secretary Hull sent this reply:

"The whole question of freedom of information has been under study in the department of state for some time. I have consistently supported the cause of freedom of news and I would support any practical measure to give international recognition to this principle."

YANK OUTFIGHTS 60 NAZIS AND TAKES A TOWN

WITH THE U. S. 7TH ARMY, Sept. 17 (AP).—In fighting that swelled around Vesoul last Wednesday Pvt. Eugene J. Oatley, Toledo, O., killed or captured 60 Germans and then took a village all by himself.

Pvt. E. J. Oatley.

The story was told today by his battalion commander, Maj. Kermit R. Hansen, Omaha, Neb., after Oatley, 6 foot tommy gun fighter, became too shy to talk.

Tanks? They're Too Slow.

The town, which was not identified, was surrounded by fields and forests. Hansen sent in a company to occupy high ground. Hansen, a runner, and Oatley started across a field. At extreme range they spotted 25 to 30 Germans hurrying into a wood and Oatley winged one as the others disappeared.

Hansen said two tanks then came up.

"I hopped on one and Oatley ran out in front, leading them toward the group of retreating Jerries," the commander related. "He was running so fast he lost his helmet. He kept gaining on us, and finally he was at least 150 yards ahead. I could see him firing as fast as possible and stopping every now and then to cuss the tanks because they were so slow."

His Trail Well Blazed.

Reaching the edge of the town, Oatley stopped to fix his tommy gun, which had jammed. Then he entered the town alone, but soon came out and waved for the tanks to follow. Then he again went into the village. Hansen said he could hear a short burst from the tommy gun but could not see Oatley as they reached the edge of the town.

Oatley's trail was plain, however. Dead Germans lay in the street. Then Oatley appeared with six prisoners. By that time the tanks caught up and Oatley began darting in and out of buildings and bringing in prisoners. Within 10 minutes the town was rid of Germans.

"After the town was taken my infantry company finally caught up with us," the major said.

CLOTHING AND $80 STOLEN.

Burglars took clothing, jewelry and household utensils valued at $473 and $50 from her home, Mrs. Julian Doronczyk, 3002 N. Davlin ct., told police yesterday.

French Jail 500 Friends of Nazis in Nancy Area

NANCY, France, Sept. 17 (AP).—The French Forces of the Interior have jailed more than 500 French collaborators in the Nancy area for questioning, marching them thru jeering crowds to prison. Some resisted and sporadic battles took place during the last three days. Many of those arrested fought with the Germans against Russia and were thrown aside by the fleeing German army and left to shift for themselves.

NAZIS FLANKED AS AIR BORNE FORCE STRIKES

Parachutists and Glider Troops at Rhine.

tions and were still thrusting forward.

The bold aerial D-day by daylight was preceded by a shattering barrage from 1,000 Flying Fortresses, which dropped tons of bombs on German defenses in a virtually unopposed operation that cost two bombers and 16 fighters.

They were paced by squadrons of fighters and fighter-bombers who challenged the few German fighters that ventured out of the clouds or flew low blasting anti-aircraft positions.

Thousands of Germans fighting in northern Belgium and along the Dutch coast were threatened with entrapment by the air borne invasion.

Tilburg is 40 miles southeast of Rotterdam on a main railway across southern Holland. Eindhoven is about 20 miles southeast of Tilburg and 30 from the German frontier at Venlo.

Across Water Defenses.

This would place the troops across some of the formidable water defenses that have slowed the drive of British and Canadian armies toward the rocket-bomb coast of northern Holland.

Berlin said counter-attacks were launched immediately against the allied sky warriors, and claimed "a considerable number" were annihilated. The broadcasts indicated heavy fighting in the Netherlands.

Supreme headquarters gave few details of the assault by Lt. Gen. Lewis H. Brereton's "secret weapon" air borne army, formed of American and British troops and flyers, weapons and planes approximating in size a full ground army. Its existence was disclosed only on Aug. 10.

It was in Holland that the Germans in May, 1940, made the first large scale use of parachute troops. And Holland witnessed the first employment of Brereton's mighty sky army.

Fighting in Geel Area.

The Hilversum radio reported heavy fighting breaking out in the Geel area of Belgium, at a point nearest to German locations of the air borne landings.

Berlin reports of sky landings near Nijmegen and above the Rhine—which is renamed the Waal river in Holland—suggested operations also were under way in a 10 mile wide strip between Nijmegen and Arnhem, menacing Germans in southern Holland with a trap.

Most of the rail and water communications linking the Ruhr and Rhineland with the Dutch ports of Rotterdam and Amsterdam pass thru a corridor near Nijmegen.

In southeastern Holland, meanwhile, the left wing of the American 1st army was knocking eastward from Maastricht in a column that could be used to help pinch off Cologne. The Germans said Americans were also eight miles north of Maastricht.

The 1st army invasion of Germany in the Aachen area had torn gaps in the Siegfried line and was hitting toward Cologne, but meeting stubborn resistance and heavy counter-attacks. The doughboys dug in and held grimly to their ground.

Fighting Into Aachen.

Doughboys were fighting in the southern outskirts of Aachen—Germany's 37th largest city with 165,000 population. Enemy defenses had been pierced below Rott, southeast of Aachen, and Americans advanced into Rotgen forest.

Down the line, the United States 3d army was across the Moselle in strength. Luneville, 25 miles southeast of Nancy, was taken against sporadic resistance, said a front dispatch, and American armor operating between Nancy and the German border captured more than 600 prisoners in 14 hours.

The Germans counter-attacked sharply in the Pont-a-Mousson area between Nancy and Metz, another front report said, and threw in several small thrusts "which possibly were intended to screen a withdrawal toward the Siegfried line." All these attacks were repulsed.

The enemy was making a determined stand at Metz, but was in danger of being flanked by mobile allied columns. The Americans threw a torrent of shells into Metz from captured and turned-about German guns. Rain made the terrain a quagmire.

7th Army Pushing On.

The 7th army fought toward Belfort—with unconfirmed reports placing it near Belfort gap into Germany—and in southern France reached Modane, on an Alpine tunnel link with Italy.

The Germans also were reported counter-attacking farther south in the Belfort area against the 7th army pushing upon that powerful fortress-ring city.

THE QUESTION.

Are you in favor of continuing with double feature movies or would you rather have one feature and a short?

WHERE ASKED.

THE ANSWERS.

Mrs. Bert C. Bentley, housewife, 3805 Foster st., Skokie.—So many times you have to sit thru a picture that you don't want to see so that you can watch the one you came to see. Sitting thru a double feature is just plain monotonous and instead of an enjoyable evening because of the long double feature I come home tired.

Alice Wilbacher, secretary, 1451 Farragut av.—When two pictures are shown at a theater—such as a serious movie and a comedy—the whole idea portrayed in one picture is lost because you go away with a jumbled recollection of both pictures. If there's a good moral to a story, it's a mistake to destroy it that way.

Mrs. Fred Sopron, housewife, 5943 S. Marshfield av.—I've always been in favor of single features and a short. A double feature is certainly no bargain because oftentimes when two pictures are playing I have to sit thru one I've already seen in order to see the other picture. By then I'm too tired to enjoy it.

Florence Jablonski, chief clerk, 2235 Walton st. — Give me single features by all means! Double features plus the news and a few other things that they show on the screen are just too much. A double feature takes up the whole evening and if I stop after the movie to get something to eat, it's after midnight before I get home.

Peter Obear, student, 2511 Jarvis av.—If I had my choice I'd be in favor of single features for every theater. Regardless of how good a picture is it's not worth wasting your good eyes to look at it for two and a half or three hours. To make it worse, one picture usually isn't any good and they pass it off with a good one.

KIDNAPED, BEATEN, ROBBED.

Arthur Klage, 44, of 935 E. 75th st., was kidnaped in an automobile by three Negroes who seized him near his home, beat him and robbed him of $14, and then threw him out at 86th st. and Bennett av., he told police yesterday.

EISENHOWER'S MESSAGE CALLS FOR DUTCH AID

SUPREME HDQ., ALLIED EXPEDITIONARY FORCE, Sept. 17 (AP).—Gen. Eisenhower, supreme commander, today addressed the following message to the people of Holland:

"First, to the people of the southern region of the Netherlands, south of the rivers Lek and Rhine:

"The hour for which you have been waiting so long has struck. Your qualities of courage and discipline, which have brought such magnificent results since the landing in Normandy began, are now called upon for one last supreme effort.

"Now that allied forces are on your soil and the Netherlands forces are acting with them your full assistance and obedience to the orders of the supreme commander are essential for the early liberation of the Netherlands.

Obey Rules of War.

"I therefore make the following statement to the Netherlands forces of resistance operating south of the rivers Lek and Rhine:

1. Conduct your operations against the enemy according to the rules of war. In the event of any atrocities committed against you by German forces collect all available evidence, especially the names and units of the perpetrators, so that those guilty can be brought to justice by the forces of the allies.

"2. Follow precisely the orders you have received from your leader—his royal highness, Prince Bernhardt—and from your local commanders. Do not indulge in any unorganized outbursts of violence. Avoid, as far as possible, action against superior enemy forces.

Sabotage Discouraged.

"3. Your orders now are not to sabotage factories, mines, or other industrial installations. Safeguard these, especially stores of petrol, oil, and lubricants, against destruction by the enemy. All these facilities will soon be needed by the people of the Netherlands and their allies.

"4. As soon as you make contact with allied troops render them every assistance and obey precisely the orders of allied military commanders. Those of you who find yourselves within an area liberated by allied armies can assist them by maintaining complete discipline and remaining quiet until you receive your orders from your leaders as to the exact action required of you.

"To the population of still unliberated areas south of the rivers Lek and Rhine I say do not attempt any mass rising. Give all the help you can to your own forces of resistance. Provide them with shelter, give them information about the enemy's activities and movements.

Stay in Homes.

"Many Dutchmen in key posts will now be going into hiding to avoid being captured or killed by the enemy. Help these men to hide or to safety. Take all reasonable precautions for your own safety. Except in the battle area and in the vicinity of important road and railway junctions, stay in your homes.

"At all costs avoid important thorofares in towns or in the countryside, especially where there are enemy troop movements and where for this reason allied air forces will be particularly active.

"To the people of the Netherlands north of the rivers Lek and Rhine and not in the area of active military operations, I say, your time for action is not yet. It will come. When it comes, you will receive your new instructions. Until then, you must remain absolutely quiet and refrain from any action or demonstration.

"Finally, to all the people of the Netherlands, I say: Listen attentively to the instructions and warnings you will receive from BBC. Read and circulate as widely as possible leaflets distributed by the allied air forces. This is the supreme moment. Fulfill your task loyally.

"If all play their part the liberation of the Netherlands will be achieved soon. Long live the Netherlands."

YANKS DEFEAT SERIES OF NAZI COUNTER-BLOWS

Foe Tries to Seal Breach in Siegfried Line.

BY JOHN THOMPSON.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

WITH THE U. S. 1ST ARMY, In Germany, Sept. 17.—The Germans today launched a series of savage counter-attacks in an effort to seal off our deepest breach of the Siegfried line, east of Aachen.

They were supported by the mightiest concentration of artillery since the early days of the Normandy invasion. Bad weather hampered our own air force until late in the afternoon, but the enemy brought in more than 100 of his fighters and fighter bombers to attack our troops.

The Germans are putting up their toughest fight to keep Lt. Gen. Courtney H. Hodges' forces from punching on to the Rhine, and now have rushed up what had once been some of their crack troops who had been battling on the Russian front.

All Guns Open Fire.

These soldiers were hurled into the attack against our positions near Stolberg, more than 5 miles east of Aachen. German field guns and assault guns sent over heavy barrages and from their dug in, camouflaged, and well sighted positions enemy tanks opened fire.

Two American companies holding two hills bore the brunt of the attack for several hours. The enemy shouting their Nazi battle cries attempted to take those hills but our infantry held firm.

Once the Yanks yielded about 100 yards. But when our artillery began smashing shells among the German infantry and mortars opened fire the German attackers fell back and the doughboys reoccupied the lost yardage.

Our artillery opened fire in earnest today after days of firing only on a few limited targets. And for the first time recently the artillery men had a chance for their favorite work: counter-battery fire.

Yanks' Eyes in the Sky.

The Germans had observation from a few hills and had many positions in sight long before we reached the area, but the American gunners had reliable eyes in the sky; our tiny observation planes.

Often in this battle, too, the Yanks would take cover in the pillboxes which the Germans had designed as their protection against invasion. But now the Americans were in the Siegfried line.

In 1939 the Siegfried line was the latest in strong defensive positions, particularly when the Germans planned to man it with 60 counter-attack divisions capable of plugging any breach which might be made.

But the pillboxes, thick and deep as they are, had been designed for the most part to hold machine guns and 37 mm. anti-tank guns. That gun largely is outmoded and the gun rooms often are too small for the Germans to emplace 57s, 75s, or 88s.

Prefer Outside Positions.

The result is, that the German soldiers did not favor fighting from within these solid boxes but preferred to dig positions outside taking advantage of cover where they could in the thick woods or copses or camouflaged positions in the open.

One result has been that now we are running across much better German defense positions than their Siegfried line. This is the use of tanks dug into the ground or used under cover in the nature of a pillbox. This new "pillbox" gives the Germans not only machine guns but high velocity anti-tank guns capable of a 360 degree traverse. When hidden by good camouflage, well sighted and in the hands of determined soldiers this type of "western wall" is formidable.

Beyond Vaart Canal.

On our extreme left flank we are well beyond the Vaart canal. In the center we are beyond Stolberg and Mausbach which is nearly two miles east of Stolberg. And on our right flank other units are fighting slowly against very tough fesistance thru Eifel forest, a ridge which is one of the many avenues toward the Rhine.

In the latter fighting there is little opportunity to use tanks and the engagements are more in the traditional manner of warfare with great reliance upon individual riflemen and automatic weapons.

One company was cut off in this fighting for more than a day but was relieved by other Yanks who pushed thru the ring of tough young Nazis to get to the Americans. In the 24 hours ending at midnight last night the 1st army had captured 1,501 prisoners, making their total during the 104 days of the campaign 176,512.

NAZIS STIFFEN AS YANKS NEAR BELFORT ROADS

'Anzio Touch' Given U. S. Troops.

BY SEYMOUR KORMAN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

WITH U. S. 7TH ARMY IN LURE, France, Sept. 17.—The Germans took the loss of Lure yesterday badly but struck back with artillery, mortars and tanks during the night and today. Lure gets only a line in the guide books but nevertheless is the site of a pretty 14th century church and, what is more important to the enemy, in a cross roads only 16 miles west of Belfort.

The Yanks had not found it necessary to shell Lure to eject the Germans but the latter's reaction after being kicked out signaled increasingly tough resistance all along the line of approaches to momentous Belfort.

The Nazis entrenched in a forest north of the town, started shipping 88 and 170 millimeter shells into Lure streets last evening and when full darkness came sent in several strong patrols.

One of these patrols got a machine gun to within 100 yards of an American command post. Our infantry killed and wounded several Germans and chased the others at a cost of some casualties.

Today the Nazis stepped up the pace of their shelling and mortaring of Lure. One G. I. veteran of Italy described the enemy's temper as producing a "touch of old Anzio." But we held the town firmly this afternoon and sent reconnaissance beyond Melisey, seven miles northeast of Lure, another road juncture standing just below the spur of the Vosges mountains.

Melisey is believed to be the point the Germans will defend in some strength.

SIRENS SCREAM AS NAZIS SCOUT LONDON DIM-OUT

LONDON, Sept. 17 (AP). — While London groped on thru a blackout that was only very slightly modified tonight, sirens sounded in indication that the Luftwaffe was out looking over the much advertised "dim-out." Lacking master switches for quick control of its widespread lighting system, London was unable to enjoy the relative brightness of the smaller cities such as Manchester.

One American airman, Corp. Jim Lawson, Milwaukee, Wis., didn't even know the black-out was ended. "Where's the change?" he asked.

3 EX-CONVICTS SEIZED; PROBE MANGANO TIE-UP

Those held are Joseph Mendino, 34, of 824 S. Bell av.; Dominic Beneduce, 43, of 4259 Gladys av., and Dominic Caruso, 40, of 772 De Koven st. Sgt. Timothy O'Connell of the police cartage detail said all three men and Mangano were named by two Negroes as having dealt with them in the sale of stolen cigarets.

HEAR BRITISH GET ROLE OF HITTING AT JAPS' FLANK

Blow at Empire's Heart Assigned to U. S.

Washington, D. C., Sept. 17 (AP).—Britain's assignment in the war against Japan is understood to be primarily a series of amphibious operations against the Malaya-Sumatra flank of the Japanese.

This means the Quebec conference of President Roosevelt and Prime Minister Churchill confirmed a division of the Pacific-Asiatic battle front into four general sectors:

The British sector southwest of the Philippines.

The central sector embracing Formosa and the Japanese homeland under Adm. Chester W. Nimitz.

The Kurile Islands area, also under Nimitz, which will become of paramount importance if Russia gets into the war.

Bases Direct British Role.

Britain's assignment is based primarily on locations of bases and supply lines. Naval authorities here have argued that if the British were to put a fleet into the Pacific it would create new supply problems and tax shipping facilities already pushed to the limit to maintain the MacArthur and Nimitz forces.

The British already have a big fleet based on Ceylon and may be expected to move forward from there toward Singapore, building up their bases and supply lines as they go.

American forces, with Australian and allied strength, probably will already have hit the enemy's heart, in the Philippines, and his head, in or near Japan itself. If those two campaigns go quickly, the work in Britain's sector may be chiefly a tough clean-up job. If the American drives go slowly, the British will have their hands full. Much depends, too, on whether the Japs decide to make fanatical stands or fight normal rear guard actions in the Malaya-Dutch East Indies area.

Fighting Season Near.

The date for ending the war in Europe, which is the key to the next few months of fighting against Japan, is understood not to have been a primary concern of the Quebec meeting. Allied plans are made, and have been made since the United States got into the war, for a victory in Europe this fall. But if victory is not forthcoming, the shift to the Japanese war will simply be delayed, as necessary, from week to week.

The date is important, however. The season of good fighting weather—the nonmonsoon season—will soon be setting in for the Burma-Malaya region and campaigns in that part of the world have to come between rainy seasons.

At the far northern end of the front is the big Russian-Japanese question. Highly responsible authorities here have been convinced from the outset that Russia would go to war with Japan once the war in Europe was won and she could move into Siberia enough troops to protect Vladivostok and handle the Japanese armies in Manchuria.

Six Issues Reported Settled.

QUEBEC, Sept. 17 (AP).—President Roosevelt and Prime Minister Churchill, it was reported today, reached agreements here on these topics:

1. An allied military commission, or similar agency, for running affairs after occupation of Germany, and the extent to which the French shall participate in the occupation.
2. Enlargement of the powers of the European advisory commission, which was created to deal with political problems after Germany's surrender.
3. The world security agency to maintain peace.
4. The Polish-Russian dispute, involving both boundaries and the next government of an independent Poland.
4. Destruction of German cartels and a core of understanding on dealing with the cartel problem internationally.
6. The part French forces shall have in delivering French Indo-China from Japanese.

GERMANS HURL BIG TANKS INTO ITALIAN BATTLE

Greek Troops Fight Near Rimini.

ROME, Sept. 17 (AP).—In an effort to prevent an allied breakthru into the Po river valley the Germans were hurling big Tiger and Panther tanks at Canadian and Greek troops of the 8th army who were reported today to be only two miles from Rimini, eastern anchor of the Nazis' Gothic defense line in northern Italy.

An allied announcement said Greek and Canadian veterans were struggling with the Germans for the fortified town of San Martino on Monte l'Abate, two miles from Rimini. Capture of Rimini would permit 8th army armor to sweep into the Po valley and cut across the rear of the Apennine based Gothic line.

To the west on the 5th army front bitter fighting was raging as American, British, and Indian troops pressed into the center of the Germans' last prepared defenses in northern Italy.

Farm Houses Become Forts.

The line on which the Germans were facing 5th army attacks was officially described as "the strongest prepared defensive positions yet encountered in Italy." The Nazis had converted farm houses into forts by reinforcing the walls with steel and concrete. Deep shelters have been cut into the sides of the Apennines for protection against allied plane attacks.

In support of 8th army troops inching their way toward Rimini United States Marauders, which heretofore have been concentrating their attacks on the 5th army front, switched over yesterday to the Adriatic side and joined R. A. F. fighters and bombers in an assault on German defenses around Rimini.

In the Adriatic fighting yesterday 8th army troops widened their bridgehead over the Marano river to 6½ miles, capturing a number of prisoners.

Brazilian Troops in Combat.

Fifth army headquarters said infantrymen working their way into the prepared German positions made "significant but small gains" against Nazi gun emplacements covering every advantageous approach route.

An announcement said the Brazilian expeditionary force was "now in combat on the 5th army sector."

Science Discovers Vital Skin Secret

How Youthfulness Is Restored to the Skin as Age Takes Flight

Now the truth is out! Science has discovered a vitalizing substance which helps give that lovely youthful appearance to the skin. QUEENOL contains a duplicate of this amazing substance... called EXETOL. It is plentiful in youth but diminishes with the passing of time. As this substance decreases with age, the skin becomes dryer, thinner and less attractive. Women who have used QUEENOL find that the skin begins to look smoother, firmer and fresher again. The natural hormones in EXETOL are absorbed by the skin below the surface where their activity aids in building new tissue. Results once considered "impossible" are now a regular performance of EXETOL, which is the potent ingredient of Queenol.... Used according to directions, QUEENOL helps to restore that smooth, youthful texture so essential to a lovely skin. QUEENOL with its precious ingredient, EXETOL, costs only $5.00 (plus tax) for a 30 days' supply. Be sure to try QUEENOL. You can get it at our cosmetic counter today.

Now! Women Over 30 Find New Hope!

Remember how often you have yearned for a cream that would do the "impossible"?

Well, This Is It! That firm, youthful appearance that seems to forsake the face, neck and hands as age stealthily creeps in, may be restored by a glandular substance... a sort of "elixir of youth" which is absorbed into the skin so it helps revitalize and restore that firm, youthful texture.

Why not try QUEENOL and prove this to your own satisfaction?

LEGION REFUSES TO SOFTEN RULES ON MEMBERSHIP

Parade Thru Loop on Eve of Convention.

BY HARRY McCLAIN.

Veterans of World War II. will not be admitted to membership in the American Legion until completion of their service and receipt of an honorable discharge.

The national executive committee yesterday accepted a committee report which advocated leaving charter requirements for Legion membership in status quo and accepted the committee's reasons for its stand—the principal ones being "that Legionnaires oppose 'selling' memberships, desire that all members be brought into the organizabers be brought into the organizaceremony, and want veterans to speak for themselves as former service men."

Parade Held in Loop.

Last night 40 Cook county Legion post musical organizations paraded thru the loop behind the national flags and colors of 176 posts. The parade started at Columbus dr. and Michigan av. and disbanded at La Salle st. and Wacker dr., after the color bearers had fallen out and marched to the ball room of Hotel Sherman, where religious and patriotic services were conducted.

Dr. Harrison R. Anderson, president of the Church Federation of Greater Chicago and pastor of the Fourth Presbyterian church, who made the religious address on "The Four Responsibilities," told his audience "there can be no freedom from want unless men are willing to work; no freedom of speech unless men are willing to accept responsibility for what they say; no freedom from fear unless men will accept responsibility for their actions, and no freedom of worship unless men are willing to worship."

Program Includes Singing.

Musical contributions to the program were made by the Galvin Manufacturing company's Motorola glee club and Chief Specialist John Carter of the Great Lakes Naval Training center's musical department, accompanied by Harold Turner, musician 2d class, member of the W-G-N radio staff on military leave.

Passage of a uniform veterans' preference act in every state in the union will be sought as quickly as possible by the Legion. Some states and cities have given employment preference to veterans, their widows, and the wives of disabled veterans, and the Legion wants this reward for military service made universal.

The veterans' preference committee of the Legion yesterday petitioned the national executive committee to direct the legislative and other committees to prepare a model act to be submitted to the states and cities. It will not be necessary for this proposal to be brought before the 26th annual convention, which will be opened today in the Coliseum and will continue thru Wednesday.

Delegates arriving from various states have brought reports that personnel sections of federal agencies are refusing to restore veterans discharged from World War II. to their former jobs.

Law Guarantees Jobs.

Under the selective service law employers must restore veterans to former jobs at the same pay and without loss of seniority by reason of military service. Exceptions are made where changed circumstances prevent reëmployment and when returning service men are physically incapable of working at former jobs.

Legion delegates have been told that federal agencies are virtually the only offenders against the law and that various excuses are given to the veteran by burocrats who desire to retain present staffs.

Welcome speeches, memorial services, and presentation of the Legion's distinguished service medal to Gen. Henry H. Arnold, commander of the United States army air forces, will be highlights of the opening convention session today. The delegates also will hear Gov. Bricker of Ohio and Sen. Truman of Missouri, the Republican and Democratic Vice Presidential nominees, both of whom are Legionnaires and delegates to the convention from their respective states.

Gen. Marshall to Speak.

The Legion arrangements committee announced that Gen. George C. Marshall, chief of staff, would arrive in Chicago and address the convention today. His address will follow one by Gen. Arnold.

Tonight Gen. Arnold and two score or more distinguished guests of the Legion will be entertained at dinner in the Palmer House. Business sessions will be started tomorrow after the Legion's distinguished service medal is awarded to Henry Ford, Detroit industrialist.

Yesterday La Societe des 40 Hommes et 8 Chevaux, the fun making adjunct of the Legion, opened its 25th convention in the La Salle hotel. Fun was forgotten for the serious business of a memorial service and hearing reports of national committees.

"I understand the telegraph company is short of help these days."

MRS. DOOLITTLE BRINGS TIP FOR SERVICE WIVES

Mrs. James Doolittle.

Mrs. Doolittle believes the responsibility of American homes and family life of tomorrow rest heavily upon the shoulders of women, who must exercise a great deal of understanding in helping service men make the readjustment from military to civil life.

Mrs. Doolittle, who has two sons, Capt. Jimmy Doolittle Jr., with the 9th air force, and John, 22, at West Point, has not seen her husband since Sept. 15, 1942.

"As far as I know Jimmy is still in England. I never ask many questions as I prefer not to know very much about his military life. In that way I never have to worry about revealing anything of military importance."

PHYSICIAN'S AUTO LOOTED.

A physician's bag containing instruments and drugs worth $150, and an overcoat valued at $25, were stolen from his automobile parked at Kenmore and Foster avs., Dr. N. E. Aiken of Fort Wayne, Ind., told police yesterday.

STRIKE AVERTED ON NORTH SHORE, AURORA & ELGIN

The threatened strike scheduled to start at 4 a. m. today by approximately 600 trainmen on the Chicago, Aurora and Elgin and the Chicago, North Shore and Milwaukee railroads was averted last night when officials of two railroad brotherhoods agreed to a postponement to give the national mediation board more time to compose the differences.

Announcement of the strike had been given the companies Saturday, 60 hours before the contemplated walkout. The action followed a week of unsuccessful attempts by John F. Murray, government mediator, to get the unions to agree to an arbitration on their demands for a 9 cent an hour pay increase.

As an example of hardships the strike would have worked on commuters, a company spokesman said daily travel on the North Shore line totals 54,000 passengers and 24,000 on the Aurora-Elgin road. These figures, he said, do not include military movements on the North Shore line, on which publication of figures is prohibited.

The workers are members of the Brotherhoods of Trainmen and Locomotive Firemen and Engineers. Their original demands for a wage increase were made last April.

WOMEN DEMAND ACTION NOW ON PEARL HARBOR

A group of Chicago women yesterday organized the Women's Committee for Impeachment Now for the purpose of compelling President Roosevelt and Secretary of State Hull to disclose facts of the attack on Pearl Harbor and other controversies before the November election.

The women, who met in the home of State Rep. Lottie Holman O'Neill [R., Downers Grove], sent telegrams to congressional leaders protesting a recess before the stories of Rear Adm. Husband E. Kimmel and of Lt. Gen. Walter Short are told.

FLAMING BOMBER HITS HOME; CREW, 2 OTHERS KILLED

Copeland, Kans., Sept. 17 (AP).—A burning bomber crashed into a farm home near here tonight, killing all members of the crew and two occupants of the house.

O. H. Hatfield, a former Kansas state representative, and his year old grandson, Jay Settle, were the civilian victims.

Mrs. Hatfield and Mrs. Dean Settle, mother of the boy and daughter of the Hatfields, were burned seriously by the flames which destroyed their home.

It was not known how many were in the bomber, believed to be from the Liberal, Kans., army air base.

Indiana Flyer Killed.

New York, Sept. 17 (AP).—Seven army flyers were killed today when a bomber crashed and burned two miles north of Westover field, near Granby, Mass., the 1st air force announced. Among the dead was 2d Lt. John W. Woodrow, 22, Huntington, Ind., the co-pilot.

Rain Comes Just in Time, Helps Cops Solve a Crime

Spokane, Wash., Sept. 17 (AP). — Detectives P. B. Anderson and Harry Albright saw a man carrying a coat under his arm. They became suspicious, apprehended him, and found wrapped up in the coat two sweaters which had been stolen. The clew? Rain was coming down in torrents.

REPORT THEFT IN HOTEL.

NOTE—From time to time, in this paper, there will appear an article which we hope will be of interest to our fellow Americans. This is number sixty-one of a series.

SCHENLEY DISTILLERS CORP., NEW YORK

It Shall Happen Here!

He was an office boy, before the war, in Schenley's Cincinnati offices. Now he is a lieutenant in the Army. He expects to come back to Schenley, after the job in which he is presently engaged is finished.

But you can wager all the tea that was in China, that he won't come back as an office boy. This young man has learned something. His Army experience has given him a post-graduate course, and both he and we are going to take advantage of the undoubted, new qualifications he possesses.

Yes, you will find him back at Schenley—soon, we hope. And when he comes back he will be tested for vocational aptitude, and then placed in a position where he can be happiest and where he can continue to expand.

Certainly in the past three or four years there has been a growing pessimism and discouragement regarding human progress. But of late we have visited with top managements in a number of important American industries and it is refreshing and encouraging to find that almost without exception these men are kindled with a sincere desire to restore human equilibrium, which has been so badly dislocated by this latest and most devastating of all wars. And we have noted too that management realizes full well that loyalty and efficiency on the part of employees must be earned; that the welfare of workers is an important yardstick for the measurement of true commercial success.

Our first obligation, when peace comes again to the world, is to prove by deeds rather than words, to the lads and lasses who went to war, that selling apples on street corners will never be countenanced or repeated in America—ever again!

TRUMAN FIGHTS PROSECUTOR OF VOTING CROOKS

Only One in U. S. Senate to Oppose Milligan.

(Harry S. Truman, Democratic nominee for Vice President of the United States, says candidates in the November election should be judged by their "experience." This article, the fifth in a series on Truman's career, tells about his experience in defending the Pendergast machine in Kansas City.)

BY CARL WIEGMAN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Kansas City, Mo., Sept. 17.—When the federal District court here started to blow the lid off the corrupt Pendergast machine in 1938, the heat of the explosion reached all the way to Washington, D. C., where Harry S. Truman was sitting in the senate by the grace of votes counted for him by the Pendergast organization.

The heat was intense. The Roosevelt administration, goaded by Missouri newspapers, decided it would be unwise to shelve Maurice Milligan, the United States district attorney who had just convicted 50 Pendergast election crooks. Milligan's term as prosecutor had expired and the justice department wanted him to be reappointed. Sen. Truman rushed from Washington to Kansas City to confer with the boss, Thomas J. Pendergast, on Jan. 31, 1938.

In the Boss' Office.

The conference, which lasted nearly an hour, was not held in the senator's office in the federal building, but in the boss' office at 1908 Main st., where Pendergast held court each morning for his subjects. No stenographic report was taken on the conversation, but when it was over, Truman announced he would oppose Milligan's reappointment.

After that came a lot of dickering. The administration was between two fires. On one side was the danger of offending Pendergast [he had been very useful in the 1932 and 1936 election] and on the other was the fear of the hue and cry that the Missouri press would make if the administration submitted to the boss' demands for Milligan's scalp. First it was reported that Milligan would be sidetracked gradually by letting him continue with the vote fraud cases, while another man, acceptable to Pendergast, would be named district attorney. This plan brought a storm of criticism.

Service to Boss.

"Sen. Truman is in office by grace of Boss Pendergast," said the St. Louis Post-Dispatch, "and in opposing Milligan is rendering service to the boss. But can Sen. Truman stand openly before the country and ask for the punishment of a public official because he was loyal to his oath of office? Can he or any other senator seek to defeat the Milligan reappointment when to do so is to ask inferentially for immunity for the corrupters of the ballot?"

Sen. Truman answered both those questions in the affirmative, as events proved.

President Roosevelt announced he would reappoint Milligan and the nomination was read to the senate on Feb. 15. Sen. Truman immediately took the floor. His speech, as reported in the Congressional Record, may be read in the light of the fact that the appointment of all federal judges and prosecutors might some day rest in his hands. Here is what he told the United States senate:

"I have never thought, and I do not now think, that Mr. Milligan is qualified for the position of district attorney for the western district of Missouri. He is not professionally qualified nor is he morally qualified.

Opposes Political Thinking.

"My opposition to Mr. Milligan began long before vote frauds were brought to light in Kansas City. His morals and his political thinking never appealed to me. The federal court at Kansas City is presided over by two as violently partisan judges as have ever sat on a federal bench since the Federalist judges of Jefferson's administration. They are Merrill E. Otis and Albert L. Reeves.

"I say to the senate, Mr. President, that a Jackson county, Mo., Democrat has as much chance of a fair trial in the federal District court of western Missouri as a Jew would have in a Hitler court or a Trotsky follower before Stalin.

"Indictments have been wholesale. Convictions have been a foregone conclusion. Verdicts have been directed. This is federal court justice in western Missouri, on the face of it a conspiracy between the partisan federal judges and their bought and paid for district attorney.

"I repeat, the President has made this a personal appointment at the behest of the rabidly partisan press, and I am saying that the approval of this district attorney is an approval of the Hitler-Stalin tactics pursued by the District court of western Missouri.

His Public Duty.

"Because the President asked for him, I have not attempted to exercise the usual senatorial prerogative to block his confirmation. I think, however, I would not be doing my public duty if I did not tell the senate just what is going on."

Sen. Bridges [R., N. H.] interrupted Truman.

"I have in my hand," he said, "a tabulation of figures of comparative registrations showing, in 1936, from the various Kansas City wards, a registration of 263,934, and a registration in 1938, two years later, of 177,506. After the vote fraud prosecutions the registrations dropped very materially as a result of the excellent action of Mr. Milligan and the two judges who so honestly and fearlessly did their duty.

"I invite attention to ward 2 in Kansas City. In 1936 ward 2 had a registration of 23,524. I am reliably informed that the total population in that ward was approximately 18,200. There was a total registration of approximately 5,000 more than the total population of the ward. What fraud and corruption!"

The senate then voted on the confirmation of Milligan to be district attorney. Only one voice voted against him. It was the voice of Harry Truman, carrying out his instructions from the boss at 1908 Main st., Kansas City.

Never Sought Conviction.

Next day the Kansas City Star told what it thought of Sen. Truman. Said the Star:

"The people of Kansas City know that in all the history of rotten elections in this city, Sen. Truman never once has done anything to help clean them up. They know that the county prosecutor's office, representing the same organization that is responsible for Truman's present position, never has sought the conviction of a single vote thief.

"They know further that this same organization has paid for the defense of those indicted and has attempted to block the proceedings against them. In the present registration it has used as officials men actually convicted of fraud.

"The only public officials who have accepted their responsibility to the public have been the federal judges, Judge Reeves and Judge Otis, and the United States district attorney, Maurice M. Milligan, and his associates. Because of their efforts, more than 100 persons, Republicans and Democrats, have been indicted and 50 convicted and sentenced. The soundness of the proceedings has been upheld on appeal."

Recalls Primary.

The Star then recalled the primary election of 1934 when Truman was nominated, and expressed doubt that he would be in the senate if that primary had been honestly conducted.

District Atty. Milligan and the federal court continued their work, described by Sen. Truman as "Hitler-Stalin tactics," and before long they had convicted and sent to prison R. Emmet O'Malley, former state superintendent of insurance and a Pendergast stooge; Charles Carollo, overlord of Kansas City vice and racketeering; John J. Pryor, a Pendergast machine contractor; Otto P. Higgins, Pendergast's police director; Angelo Donnici, who headed a 12 million dollar a year dope ring, and an assortment of small fry racketeers of the Pendergast organization.

Eventually, Prosecutor Milligan got around to the big boss himself, and sent him to Leavenworth prison for evading $443,550 income taxes. When Truman heard the news of the boss' downfall, he said: "I won't desert a ship in distress."

His friends here insist this statement proves he has a fine sense of loyalty.

SEN. TRUMAN COMES TO CHICAGO; LEGION TO HEAR HIM TODAY

Sen. Truman of Missouri, Democratic Vice Presidential nominee, arrived yesterday as a delegate and speaker at the American Legion convention. Among those who met him at the Union station were William J. Tuohy, Democratic nominee for state's attorney, and State Sen. Roland V. Libonati.

"I don't know anything special," said Truman in disposing of issues of the day. Concerning the status of the Vice Presidential race, he commented that he liked to have his name in the papers but didn't particularly care whether the mention was unfavorable.

"They said about everything they could against me when I was re-elected senator in 1940," Truman added.

Gov. Bricker of Ohio, Republican Vice Presidential nominee, and Truman both will address the Legion convention in the Coliseum today. Truman plans to sit quietly and listen attentively when Bricker speaks. He did it a year ago when the Shriners met at the Palmer House. Besides, Truman is a Legion delegate and it wouldn't be right to leave.

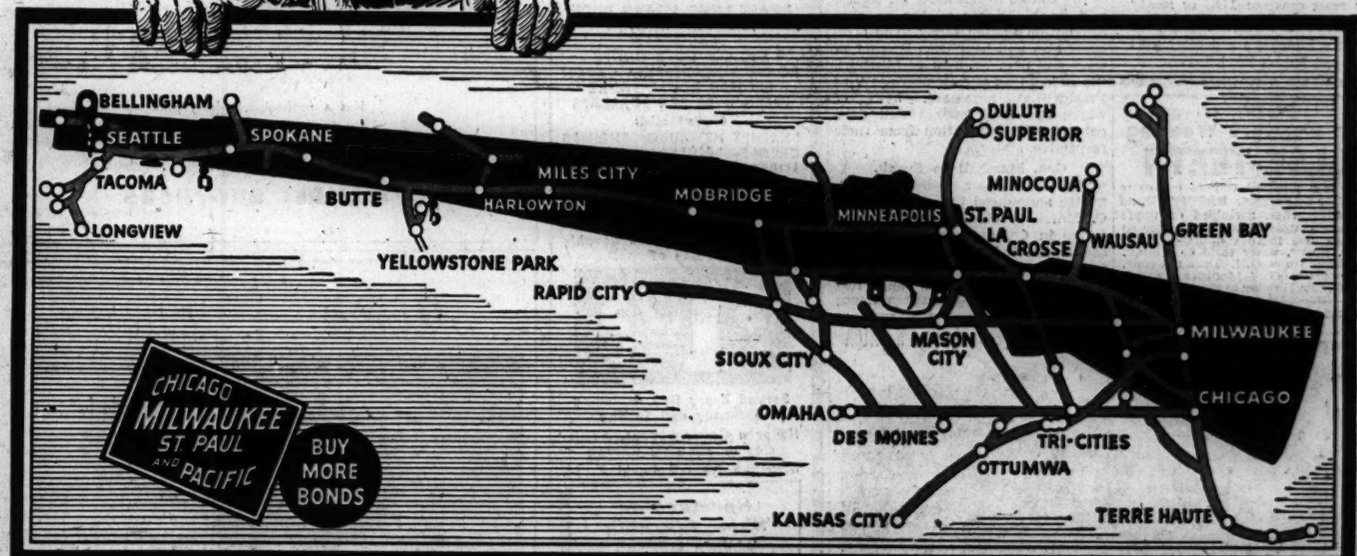
A big gun in Uncle Sam's arsenal

EFFECTIVE RANGE: 11,000 MILES



NO GREAT stretch of imagination is needed to visualize The Milwaukee Road's 11,000 miles of humming rails as a mighty weapon of war. Since hostilities began it has been "shooting for Victory" 24 hours a day, and its sights have never wavered.

Ranging over a home front sector reaching through 12 tremendously productive midwest and northwest states, it pours a steady stream of fighting men, munitions, foods and other war necessities into areas where they are vitally needed. Despite the fact that its load has been far heavier than ever before, its continuous operation remains at maximum efficiency. Its intricate mechanism is precisely coordinated and equal to every requirement of its vast and complex task.

Who mans this powerful unit in Uncle Sam's arsenal? The 35,000 loyal Milwaukee Road employes, working skillfully at a hundred different tasks on trains, in shops, yards, depots, offices and along the tracks that bind the Great Lakes region with the ports of the Pacific.

Designed for peace but a mighty instrument of war, it is not among the new inventions, though highly modernized in operation. For 94 years The Milwaukee Road has been fulfilling its share of the needs of our nation's progress. In this, the greatest need of all, it is proud to be "hitting the mark" squarely, along with America's other railroads—all united for Victory.

JOHN WARNER SAYS TO THE MAN WHO DOESN'T WANT TO BE BALD...

"We'll gladly examine your hair and scalp and tell you its exact condition—and without charge for one very good reason. Because there may be nothing wrong with your scalp, or there may be so much wrong with it that we just can't help you at all. But if you have the usual local hair and scalp conditions such as excessive oiliness, dryness or itchiness that cause as much as 85% of all baldness then, undoubtedly, we can help you.

Our examinations are always without charge to give you a chance to learn the truth about your hair and scalp and to let you decide if you want treatment.

We do not and cannot re-grow hair on bald heads, and we will not accept your case for treatment unless improvement is reasonably certain. We have grown rapidly from year to year because of our satisfied clientele."

DEWEY TO BLAST NEW DEAL LABOR POLICY TONIGHT

Talk Will Be Broadcast from Seattle.

BY HAL FOUST.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Spokane, Wash., Sept. 17.—Gov. Dewey, Republican Presidential nominee, will open a series of four nation-wide radio broadcasts from the west coast tomorrow night with an attack on the New Deal labor policy. The address is aimed as a blow against the war man power commission, the war labor board, and the department of labor, headed by Secretary Frances Perkins.

The subject of tomorrow's talk, to be broadcast from the Seattle, Wash., Civic Auditorium, was announced here this afternoon by Paul Lockwood, the governor's secretary. The topic is a hot one on the west coast where Sidney Hillman's CIO-PAC and Earl Browder's Communists have been active in recent weeks in trying to enroll for the fourth term candidate the hundreds of thousands of workers in coast war plants who have moved here from other states in the last couple of years.

Will Suggest Remedies.

Gov. Dewey will analyze the position in which American labor finds itself today under the system of overlapping agencies and conflicting regulations which has been built up by the Washington bureocracies.

"He will set forth plainly the measures which need to be taken to restore free collective bargaining and to correct the existing situation in which labor's rights are made subject to political favoritism."

A post-war outlook for shutdown of airplane and ship building has caused unrest in west coast labor ranks. Dewey, in recent interviews, has promised a national administration that will encourage war born industries in the far west.

Tomorrow night's address will be the candidate's first since that on Sept. 8 in Louisville, Ky. Meanwhile, he has been conferring with leaders in politics, labor, industry, and agriculture in Michigan, Iowa, Nebraska, Wyoming, Montana, Idaho, and here yesterday in Washington.

Radio to Carry Talk.

The talk will be broadcast from 7:30 to 8 o'clock [9:30 to 10 o'clock Chicago time].

Dewey will broadcast Tuesday night from Portland, Ore., Thursday night from San Francisco, and Friday night from Los Angeles.

Gov. and Mrs. Dewey attended church here this morning. They left here tonight in the special campaign train for Seattle, accompanied by Gov. and Mrs. Langlie. After their arrival in Seattle tomorrow morning, the candidate is scheduled for a series of conferences before a parade to the auditorium in the evening.

ACCOUNTANT'S CLOTHING STOLEN.

Theft of wearing apparel valued at $55 from his home was reported to police yesterday by Charles Schiff, 6247 N. Francisco av., an accountant.

"Thanks, lady, for letting me hold him. My boy is about his age, and this gives me an idea of what he's like."

WOMAN SEIZED ON CHARGES OF LOVE SWINDLES

Accused of Obtaining Large Sums.

A plump little German woman, accused of swindling an uncounted number of prospective husbands by convincing them the government intended to freeze their assets and disappearing as soon as she got their money into her hands, was seized last night by M. L. Goldsmith, an assistant postal inspector.

The woman's name, as given in a supressed federal indictment, is Margot Wagner, but that may not be her true name. Her operations as an alleged swindler of unsuspecting lovers of German ancestry have covered four years, Goldsmith said. She succeeded in gaining their confidence, he said, under the names of Frieda, Hilda, Erna, Margaret, and Lilly, and such Teutonic surnames as Bauman, Haas, Hammer, Henning, Kaufman, Keller, and Miehler.

$1,000 Bill in Her Purse.

A brunette, and described as not attractive, the woman was seized on the street, near Ashland and Belmont avs. In her purse was found a $1,000 bill, which Goldsmith said was an asset she displayed to her victims as proof their savings would remain safely in her trust.

Goldsmith said the postoffice has received complaints that Margot, reputed to be an alien, took at least $50,000 from 10 men who met her after they had advertised for a "German wife or companion." Most of the advertisments appeared in German language newspapers in the east and midwest, altho on one occasion she allegedly used a Chicago morning newspaper [not THE TRIBUNE] to decoy a victim out of town so she could loot his safe deposit vault of $4,000, Goldsmith said.

Bare Alleged Victim's Story.

The victim was said to be Henry Betz, 42, of New York City, who asserted Margot replied to an advertisement for a "partner and wife" in the purchase of a farm. When Betz came to Chicago she showed him $6,000 as proof of her ability to become a partner, Goldsmith said. Betz said she emptied his vault during his absence.

George G. Kelly, assistant United States attorney, said an indictment charging Margot Wagner with mail fraud was returned in Chicago. Now that she is in custody, Kelly said she would be indicted on other complaints.

GOVERNOR GIVES 500 DIPLOMAS IN MILITIA COURSE

Gov. Green presented diplomas to 500 noncommissioned officers of the Illinois reserve militia yesterday during graduation ceremonies at Fort Sheridan and vowed that "the war for those of us in Illinois will not be ended until every one of our sons and daughters has been returned home from war time assignments."

"Our plans have been made for an all-out effort to provide every returning veteran with physical rehabilitation, an opportunity for full time employment, and educational and vocational training," he said, adding that provisions also have been made for the education and needed assistance for those "whose loved ones made the supreme sacrifice."

Inspection Ends Course.

An inspection and review by the governor and Brig. Gen. Leo M. Boyle, the adjutant general, chief of staff, concluded the training course yesterday afternoon for the militia, whose members were representative of all parts of Illinois.

The governor told the graduates that allied advances on all battlefields might cause some to relax in their war time duties on the home front, but that "if all the people of our great nation continued to go about their war time duties with the same zeal as you men have displayed here today in perfecting yourselves as soldiers, there would be no need to fear a relaxation in our war efforts."

"Keep Faith with Fighters."

Concluding, he said, "I hope all of you will return to your homes to rededicate yourselves to keeping faith with those who are fighting and dying on battlefields thruout the world."

The men who completed training will serve as instructors for the various units of the reserve militia thruout the state and will be advanced to commissioned posts in the organization as future vacancies occur, Gen. Boyle said.

NORMAN THOMAS ASSAILS SECRET GLOBAL PARLEY

Secret diplomatic conferences, such as those at Dumbarton Oaks, Teheran, and Cairo were assailed yesterday by Norman Thomas, Socialist candidate for President, speaking on the University of Chicago Round Table broadcast.

"We must get rid of this secrecy in the issues of war and peace because commitments are now being made that probably will determine the future," he said.

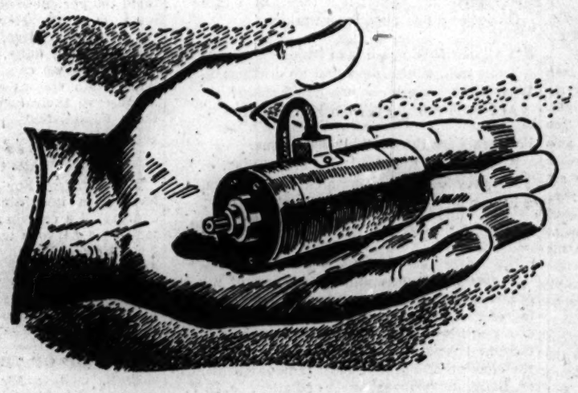
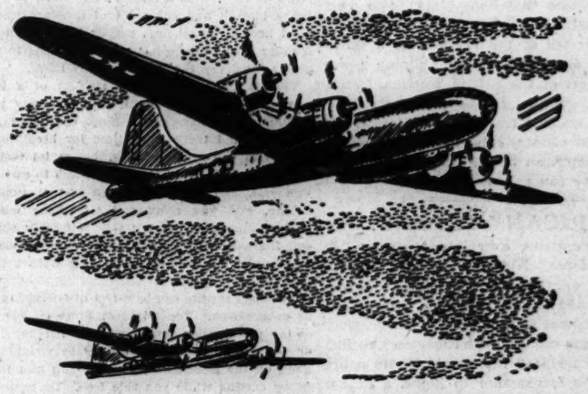
STRANGE JOBS FOR ELECTRIC MOTORS

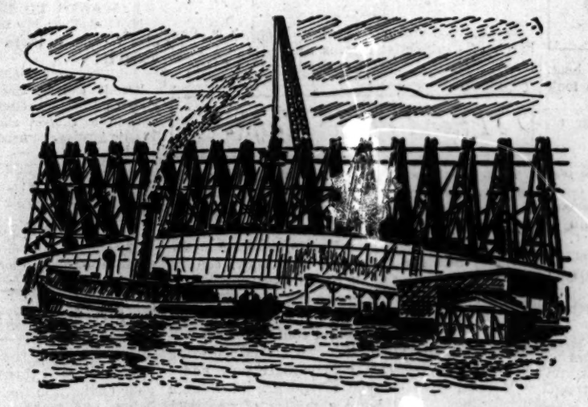
Cannon shoots through doughnut motor. In the nose of this fighter plane, right in the middle of the G-E motor that feathers the propeller, is a 37-mm. cannon. Building a motor with a hole where the shaft ought to be was a brain twister, but G-E engineers solved this problem with an electric motor shaped like a doughnut.



This Tom Thumb motor loads the guns on our bombers and fighters. Other electric motors raise and lower wheels, open bomb bay doors. War requires more than 40,000 different motor models, keeping G-E research and engineering men busy.



B-29 Superfortress. 150 electric motors act as muscles beneath the sleek exterior of the B-29. They power, among other things, the gun turrets in the G-E designed fire-control system that arms the Superfort against enemy attacks.



Turning a battleship over. 21 G-E motors teamed up for a 21-thousand-ton pull to turn the capsized Oklahoma right side up at Pearl Harbor. Electric motors see action on every front, in weapons, and in tools to repair them in the field.

Push-button doormen for LST's. Push a button, and out pops a tank. It's not quite that simple, but the doors and ramp on an LST are opened, at the push of a button, by electric motors. On an LST, there are 140 electric motors.

• General Electric produced 7 million horsepower of electric motors in 1943.
• More than 2 million G-E electric motors will join the armed services this year.

A LIMIT TO CO-OPERATION.

George Wharton Pepper, former United States senator from Pennsylvania, told the house of delegates of the American Bar association at a banquet in Chicago the other night that "we should coöperate to the utmost in the scheme of post-war coöperation, but retain in our own hands the ultimate decision of whether we should be summoned into war." He said that our country "should never delegate to any nation or group of nations the power to send the United States into war."

Those who remember that Sen. Pepper is a leading international lawyer will not fail to recognize the significance of this declaration of his. He has read the recent senate debate in which the administration's spokesman, Sen. Connally, is found defending the right of the President to send troops to engage in foreign wars without the consent of congress but merely on demand of the council of an international league. Mr. Pepper was alarmed as many another earnest American has been and many more will be when this plan is formally presented.

Propaganda agents the world over and the British noblemen who are using their American brothers-in-law to run subversive newspapers in this country have overplayed their hand and by doing so have defeated their own purpose. Their transparent lies are helping to discredit them and the cause they represent. Mr. Roosevelt's European minded administration is going down along with them.

David Lawrence, a disciple of Woodrow Wilson, exposed one of the propaganda lies only recently. "China," he said, "is beaten and helpless. The Japanese have won the war in China and everybody knows it except the American people from whom the facts have been kept by an American censorship and a series of evasive statements from Chungking designed to make the people in the United States believe that China is one of the four great military powers of the world."

Upton Close, the radio commentator, who is well informed on far eastern affairs, described the insidious workings of British propaganda in one of his talks not long ago. "Beyond Suez," he said, "Americans see a nasty situation in India which involves China. . . . The American public has had thrust before it an arrogant attempt of British officialdom to prevent American officials and people from frankly making up their minds and from framing any practical policy toward what is to happen in vast, populous Asia after American boys are done with fighting a military campaign there.

"Americans heard Churchill say to troops in Normandy that he would thank Americans not to express an opinion about what goes on in India, and now they see their Ambassador Phillips retired to the United States, obviously because he reported conscientiously to his President; yet a whole British ministry of propaganda works openly in the United States to indoctrinate us with anything that suits the British government of the time, without any fear of its agents getting sent home. And this while 300,000 American troops and officers grow more and more dissatisfied on Indian soil."

Rep. Calvin D. Johnson, the Illinois Republican, says that Ronald Campbell, British minister, and Girja Shanker Bajpai, British minister for India in Washington, have endeavored to influence American newspapers regarding India. Rep. Johnson insists that if these officials continue their attempts they should be recalled. He is trying to get action on a congressional resolution to curb British propaganda in this country.

It is no wonder that honest men who used to espouse internationalism in the name of peace are alarmed at the prospect of a world league concerned not with maintaining peace but with preserving the British, Russian, Dutch, and French empires. People who persist in pushing America into that kind of a league are betraying their country into future wars whose objects the American people will condemn and from which we can gain nothing.

AMERICAN VICTORY.

Americans, crossing over into Germany "in considerable force," laid their artillery on the fortifications of the enemy's home defenses. Hitler celebrated the occasion, the first return call in five years of war, by hanging seven more Nazi personages charged with conspiracy against his life. They included the former Berlin police head, a former ambassador to Rome, a former Hessian minister of the interior, and the former mayor of Leipzig. They were not small fry, but, like the field marshal and other army officers hanged a month ago, men of importance. Being unsuccessful, they paid with their lives.

Hitler, as guns within Germany are firing on his fortresses, is still on top, guarded by men whose guaranty of loyalty and devotion is that their fate is bound up with his own. Nevertheless, the fuehrer must be nervously looking over his shoulder and under his bed. The desire to get rid of him and save what can be saved is manifest. A great conqueror besieging his enemies on their own soil might discover a conspiracy behind him and not lose faith in his star. A man who has suffered two years of defeat and is now impressing women and children to dig earthworks cannot think of his prospects as encouraging.

The Americans in Germany or on its border in a line from Belgium to the Mediterranean have accomplished what even now appears to be the greatest achievement in American military history. Probably we should leave it to others to say what equals it in any other military history. They have traversed France from the west and from the south at high speed and they have destroyed great German armies supposed to be able to repel any invasion forces which could be sent against them. Reports estimate the enemy prisoners alone at 400,000 and the dead and wounded must raise the aggregate losses to 700,000. German commanders were able to extricate some of their troops. How many we don't know. At least a million men must have endeavored to stop an invasion which was obliged to land on beaches and keep an inexhaustible supply of materials flowing to motor equipment without the use of a port.

France is littered with the destroyed and abandoned equipment of the retreating Germans. We have been accustomed to wonder at the power of the Russian drives. The Russian soldiery had the strongest incentive soldiers can have. They were throwing a hated enemy from their own soil, ending his depredations and releasing their own towns and people. There is undiminished admiration for the qualities this required even if we are beginning to realize that the greatest battle of the war was fought in France by American troops. This battle was devastating and decisive. It quickly liberated three countries and restored to them their seats of government.

After the other war Mr. Churchill observed that American participation had not been sufficient to justify the insistence upon American ideas in the making of the peace. Before the invasion of France this year he said the American troops would have the larger part. Whatever may be thought of his first remark there can be no question regarding the second. Such considerations have their effect in subsequent proceedings. Allies always have their difficulties with each other and many of them rise from questions of esteem and acclaim. There can be no doubts this time. American armies have given American diplomats the right to keep their hats on their heads and not in their hands.

Conspiracy within Germany against Hitler may have its primary cause in a desire to create a government which can submit to allied peace terms. In other wars military defeat could be acknowledged by a government. The kaiser's government submitted with much less reason than Germany now has. Instead of retreating, as Hitler's armies have done, to the frontier for a last ditch fight, the Germany of 1918 asked for terms and accepted them. The Nazis understand that when they ask for terms they submit to the criminal courts. It would be better for Germany to quit before it has been subjected to the final assaults. It isn't better for the Nazis. The Nazis control. The Germans will pay a heavier price in defeat.

WHERE SOLDIERS CAN'T VOTE.

The independent union at the Corn Products Refining company in Argo lost an election for the position of bargaining agent to a CIO union by only 69 votes. The officials of the independent union have appealed to the national labor relations board to disregard the election because employes absent on military leave were excluded from the balloting. George Christiansen, attorney for this union, says that canvass of workers in the army and navy shows 183 vehemently in favor of the independent union as opposed to only 10 for the CIO.

The CIO has been crying for many months that soldiers and sailors aren't going to be allowed to vote in November. The charge isn't true, as is proved by the fact that already 140,000 legal ballots have gone out to military men and women from the Cook county election commissioner's office alone. The soldiers are voting in the political elections on legal ballots which will be counted. The only place where army and navy men can't vote is in such elections as the one at the Corn Products plant, where the CIO keeps them from voting.

RAGWEED.

The Canada thistle is a pest common from coast to coast in the northern United States and southern Canada, and its death is decreed in the statutes of most states because it is extremely troublesome to farmers. Canada thistle, however, is not a pest to individuals.

Ragweed is not only a pest to farmers but a curse to individuals. Any one who has seen a hay fever sufferer at this season of the year will agree that there should be a law requiring farmers to cut ragweed. The indifferently conducted weed eradication programs in Chicago and other cities ought also to be strengthened. If a majority of the farmers and urban voters were hay fever victims THE TRIBUNE wouldn't have to print a daily pollen count.

Editorial of the Day

CROSSCUT.

[New York Times.]

Give a man a pile of logs, a sawbuck the right height, a sharp crosscut saw and a partner with a sense of rhythm in a strong right arm, and he can enjoy himself and cut a lot of fireplace wood. He can't keep it up all day, maybe, but he can keep at it quite a while if he has periodic pauses to puff his pipe and survey the results of his labor.

There's something in the rhythm of a two-man saw that satisfies the soul on a cool day in early autumn. But that rhythm must be precisely right. Too fast, and there is no time for breathing. Too slow, and the saw hesitates, hangs its teeth, gets nowhere. And there is a proper touch to each stroke. You pull, and you press down just enough to get a bite, and you relax and ride back with your partner's pull. Or, if the saw is freshly sharpened and the wood not too green, you press down not at all, but let the saw carry its own weight thru the log.

Two-man sawing can be a test of friendship as well as coöperation. The slightest twist on one handle at the proper time can freeze your partner's stroke; or you can wear him out simply by weighting your hand on the backstroke, thus forcing him to do the heavy cutting while you ride free. Youngsters learn in no time how tricky the business can be. But there's a remedy for that. Put two such pranksome youngsters on the saw as partners while you sit back and smoke. When they have pranked themselves into a coöperative mood, take one end of the saw yourself. Then the sawdust really flies again.

WHY AND WHEREFORE.

Why D-day? No one has spoken on this point. The strategist who was its originator remains anonymous. Since we have not had A, B, and C days, there seems to be no logic in it. Maybe the letter was drawn out of a bowl of alphabet soup. But since D stands for day in the language of initials, it may be assumed that D-day meant The Day. Remember Der Tag?

Why "dragon's teeth" for tank obstructions in pointed forms? Well, dragons were supposed to be large, toothy beasts that exhaled fire, and tanks caught in a belt of "dragon's teeth" are likely to be blasted by shells. However, see the story of Cadmus in Greek mythology. He killed a dragon and sowed its teeth like seed, and from this planting came a swift crop of warriors.

Why the Gothic line? The Goths, an ancient Teutonic people, had a major role in the barbarian overthrow of the Roman empire, and did a great deal of fighting in Italy. Their name has become synonymous with rough manners, and also with romanticism as opposed to classicism. For the latter meaning, see Gothic architecture, an epoch-making departure from classic design.

Why Siegfried line? See the Niebelungenlied and Wagner's opera. This hero of Teutonic mythology had a wife named Kriemhild, after whom the Germans named a line of military defense in World War I.

* * *

Why Maquis? We explained this word when it first cropped up. See Mérimée's tale of Corsican life, "Colomba." Back of the French word is the Italian macchia, meaning thicket, underbrush. A fairly close American equivalent in guerrilla warfare is "bushwhacker."

AUTUMN'S TREASURE.

Softly tread, here is treasure hid,
An acorn with a quilted lid,
The curled husk of a hazelnut
Snugly tucked in a leafy rut;
Here are stools for the maid's dairy,
Toads or milkmaids, each will choose them
And all fairy folk will use them.
Linger here and gently stoop,
In its rind this rich fruit scoop;
You have cupped in its dark rind
Food the 'possum loves to find,
Pawpaw, custard fruit, and fragrant leaf,
Of your findings this is chief.
Weave a shell of willow wands
Lined with moss from lily ponds;
Hide it with a bittersweet spray,
So take your trove and go your way.
Beady-eye in the hazel copse

When Contribs Get Together.

Vacation days were over and a group of Line contributors gathered around a table to compare notes. "How was the boat trip on the lake?" they asked Roy Engel. "Choppy," responded the biographer of his dog.

"And Hig," put in Frieda Zimmerman, "was as sig as a pig."

"Well," said C. O. R., "I spent my holiday writing my biography. I'm calling it 'Esprit de C O R.'" He spelled the last word and some one suggested that it wasn't the correct way to spell corps. "Where's the P. S.?" he was asked. "The Duke swiped it," answered C. O. R.

"Where did you go?" they asked Max of the Second Gallery.

"Oklahoma," answered Max. "Devilish hot down there, wasn't it?" some one questioned. "No worse than in any other theater."

"I spent two weeks at the zoo," said Quizzicuss, "hunting down little known animals. I found a new specimen called the Ekud Karkab." "Sounds like a Russian taxicab," put in Tabarin. "No," said Quiz, "it's a strange, rebellious creature of the ermine family, with a crownlike nob on its head. Some ways, depending where you stand, it resembles the Duke."

Quizzicuss added thoughtfully, "Perhaps that's why I can't find a suitable moral for the verse I'm trying to write about it." Shandy Gaff.

GOLF IN THE FALL.

In spring and summer I striye to erase
The many faults that are lurking
And spoiling my swing; it is then just a case
Of not so much playing as working.

But all of a sudden fall is at hand—
Those still, golden days that go drifting;
What difference grip, or just how I stand?
And good can result from head-lifting.

For then I see tho the birds have gone,
And in spots the green hills are graying,
The woods are aflame, and a charm lingers on—
My score goes astray, but I'm playing!

A few potologists and palaticians of my acquaintance have pondered in vain over the naming of France's greatest chef, for whose services crowned heads were ready to go to war, Antonin Carême [translated "Lent" or "Fasting"], and the election of France's most famous gormandizer, Brillat-Savarin, as mayor of Belley. [Draft, military, and veterans' questions are answered here, or by mail if a stamped envelope is sent. Personal advice and assistance are given veterans by appointment.]

P. H. W. asks: "If a veteran qualifies for educational benefits under the G. I. law, can he attend a foreign [English] university, or must he go to school here to receive the benefits?"

It is not specified in the law that he must attend an institution in this country. The veterans' administration, however, is interpreting some of the phraseology in paragraphs 3 and 4 of section 8 to exclude attendance in foreign institutions. If it were a matter of necessity rather than personal wish, the administrator might make allowances.

K. G. F. writes: "About 10 years before I was inducted in 1943, I had trouble with one of my ears, which resulted in a perforation which had healed after two years. At a southern camp the ear trouble developed again, as a result of maneuvers in the swamps. I was discharged, and now the veterans' administration says I do not qualify for compensation under the G. I. law because I had only 78 days' service and my certificate of disability discharge was based upon an 'aggravation' and not upon a service-connected disability."

Your local veterans' administration's interpretation and decision are debatable, and you should exercise your right to appeal.

DESTROYING WHITE BLOOD CELLS WITH DRUGS.

LITTLE more than 20 years have elapsed since a peculiar order of the white cell germ fighting elemen... recognized. The malady is ... "agranulocytosis" because not enough of these corpuscles grace the circulation.

Today physicians everywhere are on the alert lest they miss an afflicted person and thus jeopardize a life. A routine study of the vital fluid is a part of every careful examination. If made accurately, we can tell at once whether or not the leucocytes are present in normal totals.

What is the cause of the condition? Attempts to find a microbe or a virus have failed. But most of these victims have one thing in common—they have been taking remedies derived basically from benzene. A large number of drugs have been blamed—some justly and others perhaps unjustly.

At any rate, we realize that coal tar products can injure the ability of the bone marrow to manufacture the white cells, known as "granulocytes." The function of this portion of the blood-forming machinery may be damaged seriously. Other components may be produced but not these particular factors.

How is the patient disturbed? As a rule, the first complaint will be sore throat. The sufferer is usually fatigued and may experience a chill. If so, a high fever will follow. Then come ulcerative lesions in the throat, mouth, and along the digestive tract. In fact, any mucous surface may be involved. In the meantime, the individual exhibits an up and down fever. Fortunately, we have a helpful treatment in pentnucleotide. Furthermore, bone marrow may be combined with a highly nutritious diet and injections of liver extract seem to offer considerable aid.

One reason why warnings are sounded against self-medication is that too much of a particular substance may be swallowed. In other words, the influence of any chemical must be observed critically. Even in the giving of the sulfonamides, the circulation must be checked repeatedly for the slightest sign of trouble. Between two and three hundred cases of this illness have been reported subsequent to the use of the sulfa compounds. Of course, there may have been other angles but we now realize that many useful and proper medicines will require watching, lest they do more harm than good.

A case that came under my observation not long ago was that of a young woman of 26, whose first symptom was fatigue. She left her place of employment in order to rest at her home in the country. While there, she developed a high fever accompanied by prostration. The local physician spotted the difficulty promptly and, under generous doses of pentnucleotide, she made an excellent recovery. When first examined, her white blood cells totaled 800 per cubic mm. The average level is 5,000. Her ailment was traced to a sedative, which she had been utilizing daily.

The least we can do, in prescribing certain classes of chemicals, is to observe their behavior and stop their administration if dangerous side effects appear.

FEARFUL.

T. H. writes: For about a year I have been imagining that I have contracted a certain disease. This is making a nervous wreck of me and I can't enjoy life any more. Is there anything you can suggest?

REPLY.

Have a blood test and find out definitely. A negative report will put your mind at rest.

SLIP OF THE JAW.

E. S. writes: My daughter has trouble with her lower jaw. Every once in a while, it pops out of the socket. What could cause this?

REPLY.

Probably a habit, altho an X-ray film will disclose the condition of the socket. As the ligaments strengthen, the fault will probably disappear.

WANTS TO BROADEN.

N. C. writes: My waistline is only 21½ inches. Is there any way to develop it?

REPLY.

Yes—it can be done with bending and breathing exercises. Why not wait until the rubber shortage is over? Elastic girdles are hard to find.

EARLY TEETHING.

Mrs. H. writes: At what age do teeth start to grow in the unborn child?

REPLY.

They begin to form within seven weeks after conception.

It is with astonishment that we note that the Quiz Kids now dispute the popular parlor theory that the younger generation has never heard any other name than Roosevelt. The Quiz Kids' political allegiance has been polled. For what it is worth, here it is: Joel Kupperman, 8, and Richard Williams, 14, are for Dewey; Ruthie Duskin, 10, and Harve Fischman, 14, are for Roosevelt.

By the way, they can't get together on the date for the end of the European war, either. They say Sept. 30, Oct. 19, and December.

Plaint.

In the mail, from G. M. R.:

"Why did R. W. have to bring it up about the Rogers Park foxholes? I want to forget the day I carried home [from work] a huge Springfield rifle [copy] weighing about 10 pounds, getting on the Ravenswood L, and not discovering my mistake until I had read the whole paper; the looks I got from the passengers and the horror I had of dropping the thing on some one's toes. Many times I was tempted to carry it over my shoulder. Footsore and weary was I when I finally handed the weapon over to one of those grimy veterans [7 p. m.], but he and his brother veterans were refreshed and fed and ready for new attacks. Ah, me! Mother love!"

The Mail Bag.

Those campaign slogans continue to come in. Mr. R. O. Fiedler of Milwaukee claims that all the slogans heretofore published by this department are colorless in the light of one already adopted in the Kickapoo, a region he describes as "that hilly section in southwestern Wisconsin where Republicans are Republicans and no pussyfootin'." Mr. Fiedler writes to ask if we can imagine the "delightful cacaphony" of 70 million voters marching to the polls in November, all shouting Kickapoo's slogan. Frankly we think he overestimates the vote this fall, but the slogan is:

"Roosevelt? Phooey!
We want Dewey!"

Mr. Ward H. Crothers of South Bend, Ind., sent three, two, alas, in rhyme. The nonrhyming one is "Elect Dewey and save both parties." The others are "Out with Sidney and all of that kidney," and:

"Tommy the Cork,
Harry the Hop—
Clear 'em all out

From a hamlet known as Chagrin Falls, O., comes the contribution of Mrs. Gertrude K. Fairchild, "Dewey or done." From Buffalo, N. Y., Mrs. John C. Abell offers "Dewey or destruction," "Dewey or despair," and, the outgrowth perhaps of intensive study of the works of Horatio Alger Jr., "Do or die for Dewey." From Romulus, Mich., a farm woman, Mrs. Curtis Waechter, offers "Vote for Dewey, end New Deal hooey." She says she thought that one up while making chili sauce. From Urbana, O., Lillian B. Brown sends "Rebuild the Republic." From Skyland, N. C., a lady identified only as M. J. G. sends "Ditch the New Deal with Dewey."

Lawrence D. Mammen of Lake Geneva, Wis., sends "America needs Dewey" and enclosed a drawing of this made into a campaign pin. Elsie J. French sends "Bust the busts" and "Beware bedtime beatitudes." Mrs. Fred Haines sends: "Support party or nation—which?" Mrs. M. R. Johnson sends: "The world will spin slicker with Dewey and Bricker." Evelyn Mitchell sends "Get there! Get there quicker with Dewey and Bricker!" And Gertrude Stein [who somehow finds herself in the Straits of Mackinac] sends "Do we win with Dewey? We do!"

Two of our contributors seem a bit confused about the whole thing. One is Jennie V. Cullen, who suggests: "Remember Manila bay, elect Tom Dewey and save America." The other is D. J. Nunemacher, who sent the following:

"Dewey and Wicker! Done with wasters!
Dewey and Wicker—do we win?
Dewey and Wicker, Doing, doing, done.
Dewey and Wicker. Doing, did, won."
That's too bad, isn't it?

O, yes, and a lone Democrat telephoned. Her suggestion is "Phooey on Dewey!"

LABOR'S REWARD FOR FOURTH TERM VOTES.

Santa Barbara, Cal., Sept. 13.—The meanest deception practiced today by the Roosevelt administration is the plot to use labor's vote in November, then close down war plants and throw the workers out of jobs. Until the election the war plants are being run at the expense of taxpayers.

A letter from Washington, D. C., informs me: "Substantial agreement was reached that contracts for 'X' number of merchant ships be canceled, there being no need for them. Thereupon, informal administration instructions 'came thru' to the effect that no cancellation in advance of the elections would be permitted."

Filthy? Tricky? Mean? Yes, union men, that's how you're to be fooled for your votes and then tossed out on your ear. A friend in Las Vegas, Nev., writes about the gigantic magnesium plant erected for war emergency purposes between Las Vegas and Boulder Dam. Production was and is in immense excess, with vast and towering stock piles. The operating company expected orders to close down and discharge its CIO labor force, but orders came thru to continue to produce until notified to stop. This, of course, will not be until after election day.

R. F. ROBERTS.

THE COMMIES PAY 600 RUBLES A MONTH.

Mattoon, Ill., Sept. 3.—In today's TRIBUNE your front page editorial talks about $80 a week war workers. Where do they get that kind of pay?

Down in this section of Illinois, $30 a week is top pay and the starting rate is $28.40. The average in our heavy ammunition shell plant is about $32 a week carry home pay. This is for 48 hours of work a week.

Living costs, with few exceptions are the same as in Chicago.

SKEPTIC.

ANOTHER ROOSEVELT PROMISE.

Whiting, Ind., Sept. 9.—On Sept. 29, 1936, speaking before the Democratic state convention at Syracuse, N. Y., President Roosevelt said: "I have not sought, I do not seek, I repudiate the support of any advocate of communism or any other alien 'ism' which would by fair means or foul change our American democracy. That is my position. It always has been my position. It always will be my position."

How well has he kept this promise?

M. J. B.

INDISPENSABLE, BUT ABLE TO GET AWAY.

Joliet, Ill., Sept. 12.—If Stalin could not take time out to attend the conference at Quebec because his armies are busy fighting, how is it possible for our indispensable commander in chief to leave the country when our armies are locked in the most critical struggle of the war?

B. W. MILLS.

THE POPOCRATS' SUCCESSORS.

Chicago, Sept. 5.—Back in the days of William Jennings Bryan, the Populists who voted the Democratic ticket were called "Popocrats." What are those who vote the New Deal ticket in 1944 to be called—Commycrats, Hillicrats, Browdercrats, or just Crats?

R. A. FISCHER.

"POLAND'S CAUSE."

Chicago, Sept. 11.—Your editorial "Poland's Cause," is a timely reminder of the plight of that unhappy country, and the valiant soldiers of Poland who are not stopping to ask questions, but keep on fighting for a cause whose winning is a sacred duty to them.

Tho the world is well aware of Poland's unhesitating heroism, ironically how little do people in it know of the remarkable record of its armies, navy, and air force! It is therefore commendable, that your editorial should see fit to remind the readers of Poland's part in this war.

Let us hope that the Polish cause is treated rightfully by the democracies on whose side Poland was aligned from the very beginning. Justice demands such treatment, and we know the Polish cause is just. CHARLES ROZMAREK.

MR. ROOSEVELT'S "WISE DECISIONS."

Keokuk, Ia., Sept. 4.—In his opening campaign speech at Lamar, Mo., Sen. Truman gives the following information to induce voters further to tolerate New Dealers in government: "Our success on the battlefronts were possible because our fighting men had what they needed, where they needed it and when they needed it. Much of the credit of this must be given to the wise decisions of the President."

Was it one of these "wise decisions" that caused the President to withhold from Pearl Harbor military base the preparatory and precautionary facts that would have enabled them to circumvent the butchery of 3,000 of our soldiers and sailors, and to have preserved from destruction almost a half of our Pacific fleet? The President for quite awhile didn't seem to boast much about his being "commander in chief" of our navy.

BIRDWELL SUTLIVE.

HE LIKES HIS PRESENT.

Esler Field, La., Sept. 9.—Permit me to thank some good friend, thru your column, for presenting me with a subscription to THE TRIBUNE. The forthright editorial stand and liberal policy of THE TRIBUNE constitute a source of morale building to one in the army, and this is especially true when one is stationed in a section of the country where a large segment of the population do not seem to know the Civil war is over. EDWARD M. BYRD, Warrant Officer.

FOUR DAY SERVICE.

Chicago, Sept. 7.—There must be a great difference in rationing boards, because I applied for sugar for canning Monday, and by Friday of the same week I received my sugar coupons in the mail. I had read "Frantic Housewife's" letter, wherein she stated she was told she had to wait 19 days, so I was surprised to get such good, speedy service. MRS. EVA JEGL.

SUBJECT TO DOWER.

Chicago, Sept. 16.—If a husband owns real estate in his name alone, is he within his legal rights to sell it without his wife's knowledge? E. L.

No, in the sense that a conveyance without her signature would be subject to dower. TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

9,250 Mile Campaign to Continue Four Weeks.

Gov. Bricker of Ohio, Republican nominee for Vice President, who will be a major speaker today at the American Legion convention in the Coliseum, will cover the western half of the nation on a 9,250 mile campaign tour to start Oct. 1 and continue four weeks.

He will speak in 20 states and confer with leaders of several additional states, the Republican national committee announced from its western headquarters here.

Day and Night Meetings.

Itinerary for the first week:

Oct. 2—Bowling Green, Ky., in afternoon and Nashville, Tenn., at night.

Oct. 3—Centralia, Ill., night mass meeting.

Oct. 4—St. Louis, Mo., mass meeting at night, preceded by conferences with party leaders.

Oct. 5—Ottumwa, Ia., in afternoon and Rock Island, Ill., at night. Republicans from Moline, Ill., and Davenport, Ia., will participate in the Rock Island rally.

Oct. 6—Milwaukee, Wis., day conferences and night mass meeting.

Oct. 7—Breakfast meeting in St. Paul, Minn., noon meeting in St. Cloud, Minn., and night meeting in Duluth, Minn.

Speech and Reception Today.

The American Legion convention speech, in which Bricker will address a large audience of influential war veterans in behalf of the Republican cause, will be followed at 4 p. m. today by a reception in Hotel Sherman given by the Illinois Republican Service Men's league.

From Chicago, Bricker will head eastward tonight for a week of campaigning in Pennsylvania, Maryland, and New England. Spending two days in Pennsylvania, he will be in Erie and Pittsburgh tomorrow and in Harrisburg and Wilkes-Barre Wednesday. Gov. Martin and Gov. Bricker will speak Wednesday noon from the steps of the Pennsylvania capitol.

From Maryland to Maine.

After a series of speeches, including an appearance before Democrats for Dewey clubs, in Baltimore Thursday, Bricker will go into Maine. He will speak twice in Portland in midday, making short talks from railway stations at Lewistown and Waterville, shake hands with station crowds at Winthrop and Pittsville, and be in Bangor for a night mass meeting.

Gov. Saltonstall will introduce him for an address before the Massachusetts Republican state convention in Boston Saturday. The eastern trip will then be concluded with an address in Norwalk, Conn., the home of Rep. Clare Boothe Luce. Several of the speeches will be broadcast by local stations.

HERBERT HOOVER ARRIVES; MEETS G. O. P. LEADERS

Herbert Hoover, only living ex-President and elder statesman of the Republican party, alighted from the Super Chief at Lockport yesterday afternoon.

He was met by Col. Robert R. McCormick, editor and publisher of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, who introduced him to Sgt. Michael Drick, of the state highway police, who was at the station, with the words, "Here's a good Republican."

Then Sgt. Drick's two children, Michael Jr., 6, and Theresa, 9, arrived and also were introduced.

"Are you going to be a state trooper when you grow up?" Hoover asked Michael Jr. Michael said he might. He explained that he shook hands with his left hand because his right hand was full of rocks.

Hoover then was driven to the home of Chauncey McCormick at Warrenville, where he conferred with Republican leaders.

Sept. 17, 1944.

A ROUGH comparison of "new agriculture" and "old agriculture" is being made on the Wheaton farm during the current wheat planting period. The new triple tilling machine, acclaimed as one of the items which will bring plowless farming to post-war agriculture, is being used for preparing the winter wheat ground, thus giving the men a chance to compare, on a field basis, this method of soil preparation with the standard method.

In former years the procedure for September preparation of wheat ground was to disc soil from which corn had been cut for ensilage. To fit such ground properly for the planter, it was necessary to run the disc across the field twice and down field twice. This year, 12 acres of corn stubble land will be fitted for wheat planting by two rounds of the fields with the triple tiller.

Four Inches First Time.

On the first round the cutting tines will be set to go down four inches into the soil, and on the second round set for six inch penetration. If it were necessary, the men could prepare the ground in one round of the fields, going six inches deep, by pulling the tiller with the big diesel caterpillar tractor, but the largest of the farm's gasoline tractors does not have enough power to pull the machine set at six inches.

The triple tiller is a large scale variation of the rotary tiller machines which have been used for many years to plow and cultivate large vegetable plots. The cutting tines are attached to a metal drum, four feet long. When pulled over the ground the tines literally pulverize the soil.

New Line Developed.

The triple tiller, manufactured by a Milwaukee company, fulfills the specifications for the "plowless farming" idea which is being discussed by agricultural leaders, since this machine merely disrupts the topsoil rather than turning it in a furrow. A Detroit manufacturer also has developed a complete line of farm equipment which includes no moldboard plow, to be sold after the war ends.

The tiller being used on the farm cuts a four foot swath and costs approximately $625. A larger machine, on a six foot axle and carrying its own six cylinder motor, sells for about $2,600. The larger machine, having its own motor, can be guided by a small tractor.

★ The GARDEN ★

INQUIRIES indicate that a few gardeners planted field beans [navy or kidney varieties] and now don't know how to harvest them. The gardener of the Wheaton farm recommends that the pods be left on the vines until the beans are fully mature, usually late September or early October in this area. Then the plants can be pulled by the roots and piled on a piece of light canvas or an old bed sheet, and left in the sun for several days. At night, and in case of daytime rains, they should be stored in a garage or other dry place.

When the pods have fully cured they will start to dry and crack, at which time they are ready for threshing. A light pitchfork, an ordinary carpet beater, or any similar light metal utensil can be used for the threshing. Flailing the pods on the canvas or sheet will cause the beans to fall from the pods. Shaking the carrier will cause the beans to drop to the bottom of the sheet, and the pods remaining on top can be discarded.

The threshed beans should be placed in an airtight container and stored in a dry room.

Caught by Freight Cars, Victim Dragged to Death

Stanley J. Kuna, 38, of 2330 Mango av., was killed yesterday when he was dragged 30 feet by a Milwaukee road freight train after he became caught in the coupling between two cars near the Grand av. crossing in River Grove. Police believed he attempted to cross the tracks between the cars.

BUY MORE WAR BONDS AND STAMPS

"Going to blow it all in, Johnny?"

UNCLE BILL: "Fun? Listen—tossing your money around in wartime is no fun for anyone!"

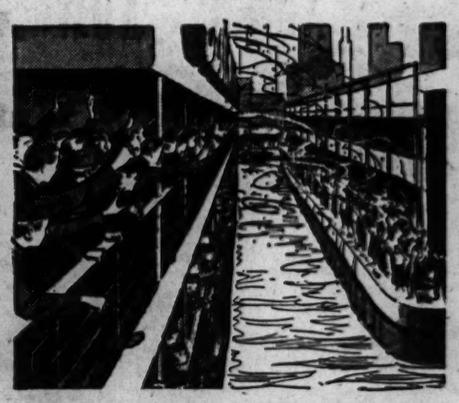
"I remember when I was in the last war. Your Aunt Helen used to write me how prices had gone sky high because everyone was earning big money and buying up everything in sight. They didn't seem to realize that the more they spent, the less they got in return.

"Prices went up and up just like at an auction—and your Aunt Helen could hardly make ends meet. I didn't think that was fair to our soldiers' families then, and I wouldn't like to see it happen again today. I know that you wouldn't either.



"Besides giving us a royal welcome home, I wished that everyone had been more sensible about their war money. I'm too old to wear a uniform in this war, but I'm not too old to fight rising prices. Everyone can get in that fight."

"And Johnny, if I had only had the opportunity that you have right now. Why, I might be a boss today. A friend of mine salted away every cent he could during the last war and had enough afterwards to set up as a contractor."

UNCLE BILL: "Johnny, why not do as our government says—put away every cent you can into War Bonds, life insurance and a savings account."

JOHNNY: "I was only kidding, Uncle Bill—I'm on my way to the War Bond window right now."

THE financial health of America as a whole depends upon the financial health of every individual. This in turn depends largely upon how well informed each individual is concerning the part he must play in the general economic picture for his own best interests and in the best interests of his country.

Recognizing this, America's Life Insurance Companies are sponsoring this educational program as a public service to the 68,000,000 owners of life insurance and to every American citizen.

Hokum Aplenty in Film Tale of a Lady Welder

"I LOVE A SOLDIER."

A Paramount picture, directed by Mark Sandrich, featuring Paulette Goddard and Sonny Tufts, and presented at the Chicago.

By Mae Tinee.

Good Morning!

And now absorb the tale of a lady welder, who doesn't aim to get married till the war's over, then loses her heart to a soldier, a sweet-smiling, long-legged blond galoot—and learns—out of the blue, as we say—that he's married.

Is the soldier a villain? No, a thousand times no! He's just a sort of procrastinating guy who doesn't get around to telling the sad story about how he and his wife hadn't understood each other for a long, long time before fate had brought Paulette and Sonny together . . . and how, at the moment Paulette thinks he's two-timing her, he's really seeing the lady who bears his name about a divorce. . . .

Paulette has a girl friend and Sonny has a boy friend. Comics, the two of them [Mary Treen and Walter Sande]. They marry and are very much in on the troubles and pleasures that beset the welder and the soldier, who battle and love till the clouds roll by. . . .

This is rather a made to order give-'em-a-war-angle-with-laughs number that's awfully long on hokum.

Sonny Tufts is sterling as the soldier and Paulette is sorta tinny as the welder. I just didn't believe a word of her.

Barry Fitzgerald makes a fuzzy role glint and you'll like the other players personally, I'm sure.

The film is simply crowded with incident.

Looking at Hollywood

By Hedda Hopper

HOLLYWOODA Cal., Sept. 17.—Jennifer Jones and Joe Cotten have their work cut out for them. They'll be in Hal Wallis' "Love Letters." . . . "The Greeks Had a Word for It" has been changed to "Insincerely Yours," with Sylvia Thalberg scripting it. . . . Martin Kosleck bought "Murder Man," and Vera Vague wants to play the murder man's wife. . . . Flight Officer Jackie Coogan is doing a story about gliders for Collier's. . . . Hugo Ballin sends a clipping which reads "Devotion is based on the lives of the three Bronte sisters, starring Ida Lupino, Paul Henreid, and Olivia de Haviland." Writes Hugo, "I once produced 'Jane Eyre,' but never knew before that one Bronte sister was a man—did you?" . . . Harry Tugend is busy writing the epic of California for Bing's third picture after his return. It begins with the gold rush and ends with the admission of the state to the union, and it's all Crosby.

Anything to Oblige.

Understand Cuba was upset about Warners picture "To Have and Have Not." The Cubans felt it showed up Cuba in a bad light, even tho Ernest Hemingway wrote it. So the story was switched to the French island of Martinique, occupied by Vichy forces until we forced them out, which leaves Hemingway's original story where?" . . . Betty Hutton arrived home today voiceless, but enthusiastic about her trip, and with plans [in spite of Paramount] to go overseas and entertain the boys. . . . Paulette Goddard was tossed off a plane before she got on, and sat with four other army wives waiting for the next one. . . . The day before Paulette left, Jinx Falkenburg brought some soldier friends up to say goodbye. When a new traveling gown arrived, Paulette rushed upstairs and tried it on. It was too long in front. She threw it in the box, saying, "I'll never wear it!" Then a soldier asked, "Have you tried it on backwards?" She did and it was perfect. . . . The howl of the week is Lucille Ball, who's divorcing Desi Arnaz, making the cover of "Home-Making Magazine."

Sillies and Oddities.

The reason J. Carrol Naish is letting Estelle Taylor steal scenes in "Hold Autumn in Your Hand" is she's his landlady—and wouldn't you? . . . Groucho Marx, looking at his daughter Marian's new hat, which had a big bird sitting on it, said, "I don't mind the hat, but why did you have to buy one I'll have to feed? . . . Van Johnson was visited on the set by a school friend from Newport, R. I., who turned to Van and said, "What did you think when they first told you you were a star?" "Well," said Van, "I thought of all those parts you got in high school that I wanted. Now you're selling insurance and I'm a picture salesman."

Bright Stars of Air and Stage.

William Bendix is just about the hottest thing in town. His radio show's good, too—give it a listen. . . . Rene Clair wants ZaSu Pitts, who is now in Chicago, for top spot in "Ten Little Indians." I remember the first time she stepped on any stage. It was in a Noel Coward one-act play "Tonight at 8:30" for charity. Acting with Pitts were such well knowns as Judith Anderson, Isabel Jeans, and Willie Bruce. Pitts wore a trick hat, carried a funny pocketbook, got herself tangled up in the telephone cord. You couldn't hear a word of dialogue. The second night, ZaSu dressed in the alley, but she kept right on wowing the audience.

Help the Child Develop Some Independence

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS.

[Copyright: 1944: By News Syndicate Co., Inc.]

I sat quite near a family one day and watched a rather weary little child being taught to be dependent.

After having been fed her main dish by a doting father, much against her will, she began to wander around among the tables, self-consciously accepting the cooing attentions of customers and waitresses.

When dessert was brought in, the child came back to her table. Her father lifted her into her chair.

"I don't want you to help me up. I'm big. I can climb up." And she proceeded to slip down, so she could climb up alone. But she wasn't successful. Her father had scant patience with this evidence of self-sufficiency. He gave her a little boost which brought her sharply up on the chair, but which brought tears, too. Eventually, when the tears subsided, with spirits and appetite slightly dampened, she was ready for dessert, but not before her father had tucked her napkin in her chin, in spite of her efforts to do it herself.

Her mother picked up the spoon and attempted to feed her some ice cream. But she closed her mouth and then cried, "I can feed myself; let me feed myself," and clutched for the spoon. Her father interrupted, "No, baby, let mother feed you." So baby, getting somewhat worn out in her efforts to be independent, subsided and allowed herself to be fed. But after a few mouthfuls, she protested again, mother and father joining in the discussion. At last they gave in, and tempered in spirit, with teary eyes, she finished her dessert herself.

Quiet, peace, no focussing of attention on the child's eating in any way, no emotional disturbance, pleasant conversation, are the essentials of the proper environment in which a child should learn to eat what is put before him [presuming it is the proper food] and how to learn to feed himself.

To help your child to independence allow him, within reasonable bounds, to do the things he naturally craves to do.

Exhibition Held in North Shore

Benefit Put On by Lake Forest Garden Club

Instead of the annual garden walk, the Lake Forest Garden club gave a new type of benefit party—a collectors' show—over the week-end in the Lake Forest library to raise money for the children's nature study classes sponsored by the club. Mrs. Joseph M. Cudahy and the other members of the exhibition committee transformed the beautiful rooms of the library, a memorial to Kersey Coats Reed, into a perfect setting for the china, silver, and glassware lent by Lake Foresters.

The modern French pottery table decor trimmed in gold owned by Mrs. William R. Odell Jr., and the terra cotta figures exhibited by Mrs. Donald Welles were shown to an advantage in the north room of the library along with Swedish glass table goblets and bowl lent by Mrs. John Stuart. An engraved glass chalice from Sweden was another rare object shown in the room, which was decorated with tropical foliage from Florida, arranged by Mrs. Edward K. Welles and Mrs. Stephen Hord.

The walls of another room of the library were hung with floral prints furnished by Mrs. Clay Judson and Mrs. Dexter Cummings. In lighted glass cases were miniature books owned by Mrs. Alfred E. Hamill, and a miniature antique silver English tea set. Floral arrangements by garden club members decked the room. Mrs. Walter S. Brewster, general adviser of the show, made an illustrated talk on flower arrangement on Saturday and Sunday afternoon.

Among those who attended the exhibition were Mrs. John Coleman and her daughter, Beth, Mrs. Charles F. Glore, Mr. and Mrs. William Roy Carney and their daughter, Jean, and Mr. and Mrs. Albert B. Dick Jr.

An Impetuous Boy of 17 Told: Give Gal Time

[Copyright: 1944: By The Chicago Tribune.]

Even the smoothest joes sometimes make the mistake of losing a good gal's friendship by rushing her. A couple of dates may be enough to convince him that the girl is strictly a mellow doll, the stuff of which dreams are made, but it usually takes a girl longer to make up her mind. Here's a typical letter from a fellow who blundered by asking to be number one with his special girl while he was only an extra on her date parade; it gives out this way:

on the SOLID side

"I am a young man of 17. I have met a wonderful girl who has moved into our neighborhood recently. She is 18 and I became infatuated with her at first sight. She is pretty and comes from an excellent family but is not at all conceited. I have told her that I love her but her only answer is that she loves me, too, but in another way. [Brotherly stuff!] She has asked me to meet other girls, perhaps I would find the girl for me later on. Tho I don't want any one else but her, she regards it as puppy love. I'm leaving for the service in a month or so; do you think that by writing and sending her small gifts I can make her realize that I am sincere?"

Even tho you are fond of the girl, don't try to rush her into the ever-lovin' department until you are sure she wants to accept your friendship. Give yourselves ample time to get acquainted; do write to her frequently and send her an occasional gift if you like. But drop that final, "this is it, fellows" attitude until you have given yourself time to be sure! Your stupid-cupid rush technique will only make the gal more wary. Both of you are a little young to be thinking beyond the hand-holding into the home-'n-hearthside stages; give this honey-chile a year or two to think it over. If she's still your dream gal then, she probably always will be.

Goren on Bridge

ANSWERS TO SATURDAY'S QUIZ.

Q. 1—As South you hold:
♠AK64 ♥A73 ♦A1072 ♣95
The bidding has proceeded:

South	West	North	East
1 spade	Pass	1 no trump	Pass

What do you bid now?

A.—Pass. Game is hopeless, since you have only one trick in excess of your opening bid. Don't show the other suit. Take a reprimand if you raised to two no trump and blush violently if your answer was three no trump.

Q. 2—As South you hold:
♠KJ1075 ♥63 ♦942 ♣653
The bidding has proceeded:

North	East	South	West
1 heart	Pass	1 spade	Pass
3 hearts	Pass	?

What do you bid now?

A.—Pass. You have already done your noble duty by the hand. Since you are not the opener you may pass if you feel like it. And that's just how you should feel.

Q. 3—Partner opens with one heart and you hold:
♠KQ93 ♥A93 ♦6432 ♣75
What is your response?

A.—Two hearts. There is a distinct objection to responding with one spade. If partner happens to rebid two hearts you will then feel obliged to raise to three, which would be doing too much bidding on the values held. You will almost surely land in game whether you can make it or not. Where you are not strong enough to do both, the raise of partner's major suit should be made.

Q. 4—Partner opens with one club and you hold:
♠KJ3 ♥KQ4 ♦A1075 ♣A72
What is your response?

A.—Three no trump. While a response of one diamond would be regarded as correct it is not the best strategy. Such a response makes your future problems very difficult. The three no trump gives an exact and complete picture of your hand in one bid and partner will be able to judge whether there is a slam in the hand.

Q. 5—As South you hold:
♠Q5 ♥976 ♦Q643 ♣A754
The bidding has proceeded:

North	East	South	West
1 heart	Pass	1 no trump	Pass
2 spades	Pass	?

What do you bid now?

A.—Three hearts or with a conservative partner four hearts. The important consideration is not to persist with no trump because you have stoppers in the other suits. Partner is marked with at least five hearts and four spades and must be short in the other directions. You have some very good cards for him, especially the spade holding.

Q. 6—As South you hold:
♠74 ♥63 ♦KQ8652 ♣954
The bidding has proceeded:

North	East	South	West
1 spade	2 clubs	Pass	Pass
3 clubs	Pass	?

What do you bid now?

A.—Four diamonds. In view of your previous refusal to bid partner cannot expect more than this, but he is entitled to know that you have a good diamond suit, in view of the fact that he wishes to contract for game tho you may have nothing.

Q. 7—As South you hold:
♠A1074 ♥65 ♦KQJ5 ♣A92
The bidding has proceeded:

North	East	South	West
1 heart	Pass	1 spade	Pass
2 no trumps	Pass	?

What do you do?

A.—Make up your mind to bid a slam. The best bet is to temporarily bid three diamonds, just in case partner happens to have four of that suit. If he supports it bid a slam there, if not bid a slam for him in no trump. You have a good substantial opening bid and partner has opened the bidding and jumped. This is not a matter of finding out how many aces partner has, but how much stuff.

Q. 8—As South you hold:
♠A9652 ♥J10 ♦6 ♣109853
The bidding has proceeded:

East	South	West	North
1 heart	Pass	2 diamonds	Pass
2 no trump	Pass	5 hearts	Pass
6 hearts	Pass	Pass	Pass

What is your opening lead?

A.—The ten of clubs, in an effort to build up a trick before you are deprived of the ace of spades. The singleton diamond is a very bad lead, since there is apt to be some sort of guess in that suit. If partner has the ace, they won't make the hand anyhow.

Week's Social Calendar Lists Varied Events

BY JUDITH CASS.

THE week will be a busy one with a two day program on Friday and Saturday planned by the British War Relief society to celebrate its fifth anniversary, a gay benefit Friday night given by the Evanston Junior center of the Infant Welfare society, and the opening today of the annual St. Luke's fashion show headquarters.

Rosh Hashana Services Hail Allied Victory

BY THE REV. JOHN EVANS.

The world will be a better place in which to live in the Jewish year 5705, which began last night at sundown. This was the theme at crowded Rosh Hashana services in many synagogues last night and the devout heard spiritual interpretations of the present liberation of enslaved countries.

Rabbi Benjamin H. Birnbaum, president of the Chicago Rabbinical association, and spiritual leader of Ner Tamid congregation, 2754 W. Rosemont av., voiced his optimism for the new year before his congregation, and on behalf of the Rabbinical association extended New Year's greetings to Chicago's Christian community. His message recalled years just past when "the entire democratic world was in danger of being destroyed by the dark forces of fascism."

"With gratitude do we therefore approach the new year for the liberation of many enslaved European countries," the message continued. "We will pray for speedy victory for all the united nations. Above all, we will pray in our synagogues for the advent of a better world which will witness the mobilization of the great spiritual forces of all mankind.

"We, the members of the Chicago Rabbinical association, on the occasion of the Jewish new year, extend greetings to our Christian friends of all denominations, and offer them assurance that even as we joined hands in the common purpose of winning the war, so too will we lend our best efforts in helping the post-war world obtain a lasting peace."

Dr. Louis L. Mann of Chicago Sinai temple, told his congregation last night, "Brotherhood, once a dream and a vision, has now become a dire necessity." He asserted that mankind has become victim of man's own ingenuity.

"Man," said Dr. Mann, can outrun the deer, outfly the bird, outswim the fish; Prometheus-like he has stolen the fire from heaven in the form of electricity. He has conquered all nature except human nature. His morality and ethics have not developed comparably with his mechanics and technology. The war did not cause the sickness of society; it simply revealed it.

"Science has annihilated time and space, and this world thus made physically smaller must become spiritually larger. Isolation is now an impossibility, and if it were a possibility it would be a repudiation of the principle that a man is his brother's keeper. When he refuses to be his brother's keeper, he becomes his brother's killer. Brotherhood, once a dream and a vision, has now become a dire necessity. Mechanics without ethics spells disaster. Technological advances without moral development are catastrophic."

The ram's horn, or shofar, calling congregations to recognition of the solemnity of the new year's coming, was blown for all Orthodox and Conservative congregations.

White Collar GIRL

BY RUTH MAC KAY

Dept. of Deep Research.

The dark eyed occupant of the adjacent desk who took over the White Collar Girl column for its vacationing editor raised the question of "Blue Monday." Blue, she contended, is for eyes and hearts [true blue] and sentiment, "something borrowed, something blue." Why, she asked, Blue Monday?

The research department in the person of a reader now reports that "Fact, Fancy, and Fable" [published in 1889] explains Blue Monday thus: "Those whose affairs of business occupied them on Sunday were considered to have a right to a holiday on Monday. The name is said to be derived from a custom of decorating European churches with blue the Monday before Lent."

An English dictionary defines Blue Monday as "a Monday spent in dissipation by workers." Our research department, when last heard from, was knee-deep in blue stockings, blue laws, and an explanation of blue gowns—not Alice blue gown but a class of mendicants in Scotland, if you please.

Alluring New Woolens Win Fashion Favor

BY REA SEEGER.

Fabric collections, especially the new woolens featuring the latest colors for street, town, and country clothes, are providing competition for the showings of ready to wear costumes. The big bolts of coat fabrics produced by world famous textile weavers are as rich and thrilling to see as anything made into a finished garment. The textures are butter smooth, with the old time duvetyn or suedelike weaves leading the list for shopping favor. Next come the handsome rough nubby and hand woven materials.

Many exciting new colors, such as plum, winter gray [gunmetal, platinum, or silver], black tulip, and the vivid shades of sulphur yellow, pink, and red, offer high fashion hues for new winter coats. And this year you'll find dress weight woolens the same shade as the coat fabrics, so that you can wear a monotone costume of dress and coat.

In addition to the solid colors, plaids, checks, and smart mixtures offer a fascinating array from which to choose and make your winter costume. These latter also blaze with strong, clear color and are especially ideal for winter country life wardrobes, and swank sports clothes.

Sally Appeals for Clothing to Aid Needy

BY SALLY JOY BROWN.

Mrs. G. is caring for her grandson, 4. His father deserted the family, and his mother recently was injured in an accident and is unable to work. The family's income is very small, and both the grandmother and the child need clothing. The boy wears regular 4 year old size clothes and shoes size 6½. The grandmother requires women's clothing size 58 or 60.

During the depression, Mr. W., who is elderly, was ill and unable to work. Because he was on relief and unable to replenish his clothing, it is very much worn. He now has a job but earns a very small salary. After paying room rent, meals, carfare, and other necessities, he has little left for clothing. If any reader has shirts, size 15 or 15½, he would be grateful for them.

Mrs. X. is a service man's wife and the mother of two small children. She needs a crib for her infant daughter and toys for her son, 21 months old. She is unable to work to supplement her income, which provides only for necessities. The address is on the south side.

Thru the Looking Glass

If you follow this column with the fidelity we fondly assume, you'll know that our sales resistance to the exquisite translation of a clean, sweet lemony fragrance is absolutely nil. We love the stuff. Just mention "lemon verbena," and we dash madly to the source of supply.

Our very favorite among preparations of the lemony school is a friction lotion, with soap and bath salts to match. A bath glamorized with these is the most pleasing, luxurious ritual imaginable—and it would make a wilted lettuce leaf stand up and do duty in the most pretentious of salads!

The friction lotion, with its alcohol base, isn't easily come by these days. It sort of sneaks into town now and again, in small doses, and is grabbed off the counters as tho it were platinum—or meat points—at bargain prices. However, we've just learned that the beautiful little lemony family has a new addition: Bath bubbles, in the same fragrance.

These are packaged in a stunning little gray pottery jug, with a simple, sturdy cork as a stopper. A half tablespoon of the powder, poured into the tub just beneath the tap, is about all you need. The pressure of water releases the bubbles, billions of them, each one feathery and fragrant, and all combine to make your tub an exquisitely scented, billowing sea.

We must admit that the enthusiasm for bath bubbles is one we didn't share too wholeheartedly, but these bubbles we go for in a big way. The water is suddenly soft, the bubbles are kind of caressing, and the fragrance is zestful but soothingly sweet as well.

INSTALMENT I.

REMEMBRANCE.

There are traffic lights in the middle of Marbury where its two main roads cross. Michael Harsch came up to the pavement and saw the orange light go on. Having lived the greater part of his life under German rule, he made no attempt to cross before the red, but stood waiting patiently just where he was until the lights should change.

Michael Harsch looked idly down the irregular line of houses: A tall, narrow one running up to four stories with a dormer window in the roof; the square front of a shabby hotel with its sign of the Ram swinging tarnished just over the heads of the passers-by; farther on a little squat, two storied house with its old woodwork painted emerald green and over the door, in gold letters two feet high, the word TEAS.

He turned back to the traffic lights, and found them green, too. If he had crossed then, a great many things might have happened differently. Yet the moment came and went without anything to mark it out from other moments. His mind was divided between the purpose which had brought him to the crossing and the realization that he was tired and thirsty, and that a cup of tea would be pleasant. If he crossed now, he would get the 4:45 to Perry's Halt and catch the bus to Bourne. If he waited to have some tea, he would miss his train and the bus, and be late for supper, because he would have to walk across the fields from the Halt. He hesitated, and as he did so the lights changed again. He turned his back on the crossing and made his way down Ramford st.

He went a little way down the street and crossed over. Here again there was a decision to be made, but this time it hardly cost him a thought. The little green tea shop had put the idea of tea into his mind, but it had no attractions for him. He went up three steps, crossed a tessellated space, and entered the dark, narrow hall of the Ram.

There were six doors. Above one of them were the words Coffee Room. As Harsch approached, this door opened and a man came out. The room was lighter than the hall. The light fell slanting past an ear, a cheekbone, a tweed covered shoulder, and struck full upon the face of Michael Harsch. If the man who was coming out of the coffee room checked, it was no more than anyone might have done to avoid colliding with a stranger.

Michael Harsch stood still. He thought he had seen a ghost, but he was not sure. You have to be very sure indeed before you speak about a thing like that. He had had a shock, and he was not sure. He stood looking into the room but not seeing it. Presently he turned and walked back into Ramford st. When he got there he stood and looked about him, up the street and down. There was no one in sight whom he had ever seen before.

When he had satisfied himself that there was no one in sight he began to walk back towards the traffic lights. He had forgotten that he was tired and thirsty. He had forgotten why he had gone into the Ram. He thought only of getting away from Marbury, of catching his train. But he had lost too much time; when he reached the station the train was gone. He had an hour and a half to wait and the long walk over the fields at the other end. Supper would be over before he got home.

When Michael Harsch had crossed the road and was at a safe distance, a man in a tweed coat and a pair of gray flannel trousers came out of the little newspaper and tobacco shop next door to the Ram. He looked exactly like dozens of middle aged men in country places. He went back into the hotel with an evening paper in his hand. To all whom it might concern, he had just stepped out to buy it. He went back into the coffee room and shut the door. The only other occupant looked over the top of a cheap picture paper and said,

"Did he recognize you?"

"I don't know. I think he did, but afterwards he wasn't sure. I went into the tobacconist's and watched him thru the window. He looked up and down, and then, when he saw no one, he wasn't sure—I could see it in his face. He didn't see you, did he?"

"I don't think so—I had my paper up."

The man in the tweed coat said, "Wait a minute! When you get back you can find out what is in his mind about me. He's had a shock, he is doubtful, but you must find out what is the state of his mind when the shock has passed. If he is dangerous, steps must be taken at once. In any case, it is very nearly time, but if it is possible without too much risk he should be allowed to complete his experiments. I leave it to you."

On the next day Michael Harsch came out of the hut in which he had been working and stood looking down the tilted field to the house at Prior's End. Because the work on which he was engaged was dangerous, and there was always present the possibility that it might end itself and him quite suddenly in a puff of smoke, the house was nearly a quarter of a mile away. The hut was long and low, a shabby looking affair roughly creosoted to withstand the weather, but the door thru which he had come was a solid one, and the line of windows not only carried bars but were secured inside by strong and heavy shutters.

He turned to lock the door behind him, pocketed the key, and then stood again as he had done before, looking out past the house to the lane which followed the slope, and the line of willows which marked the trickling course of the Bourne.

He lifted his face to the sky and watched the driven clouds. A man of middle age, standing crookedly to save the leg which had been crippled in a concentration camp, the habitual stoop of his shoulders, less noticeable now that he was looking up. His hair, rather long and still black, was barred by a white lock which followed the line of a scar. His features were thin, and drawn so fine that it was only a second or a third glance which would probably decide that they had once been handsome. He looked now upon the sky and upon those hurrying clouds, and all at once he straightened up, standing evenly upon his feet. There was power in the world, and he had the key to do it. He began to walk down the field to the house.

Janice Meade was in the little sitting room which had been built on at the back, perhaps 150 years ago. It jutted out into the garden and had windows on three sides of it—casement windows, each with a cushioned window seat. The rest of the house was much older. It was and always had been Prior's End.

CONCLUSION.

INSTALMENT XLIII.

Carol had always loved a good broadcast, but never had she attended one with a thrill to it like this one. Every nerve in her body became geared to listening and it seemed a long, long time before any sound came. Then the door of the next room opened and a man, presumably one of the guards, spoke with a New England twang.

"Right in here's the parlor, general."

"Thank you!" It was Bachmann's voice. She nodded in response to Barlow's inquiring look. Bachmann was still speaking.

"Can you tell me who my visitor will be?"

"Waal now, I reckon that would be agin regulations. And anyways, I dun't know."

"Of course, of course!" said Bachmann, and he sounded nervous. "Naturally, you could not say! Well thank you just the same.

The guard went out and the unseen audience could hear Bachmann pacing up and down the room. Once he muttered something inaudible in German. The man was obviously keyed up and anxious about who his caller might be. The general glanced at the clock.

"About time!" he barked.

Then the operator gave a signal with his hand. The barking general had been right. It was time!

They all sat forward on their chairs as the sound of the door opening for the second time came thru. Almost instantly it was closed again and then came a scream—a high, piercing scream like that of a terrified woman.

"Janner!" Bachmann's voice expressed agony. "No, not you, Janner! You are supposed to be dead!"

"Bachmann!"

"I knew there was something strange about that shooting. I was pretty certain that Baroni got away—but that you too. . . . No! It doesn't seem possible! If I hadn't known that uniform you're wearing was a part of your job, I'd think I was seeing a ghost! What have you come here for? To shoot me?"

"Shut up! You are saying crazy things!"

"No, I won't shut up! You've always hated me for that scar I gave you. You always wanted revenge, and now, just when I think I've escaped you, you turn up again. As God is my witness, I wish I had killed you when I found you with Elsa that night instead of just cutting a scar on that body you are so vain of! And now I haven't a dog's chance against you, Janner!"

"You hysterical coward!" Janner's voice was furious but low pitched. "Don't call me by that name! We might be overheard. Pull yourself together. This is a booby trap of some sort." Then he spoke louder. "I have never seen you before. There is some mistake."

"There is no mistake!" Bachmann cried sobbingly. "There was no mistake about what you did to my Elsa, or about what I did to you. You let me live when you met me again years later. But it was only to torture me with uncertainty as to what you were going to do."

"Listen to me!" Janner's voice was a fierce whisper but it came thru distinctly. "I am a man called De Gresser. And I am remaining De Gresser. You said I'll kill you—well suppose I do? Now! And claim I was obliged to defend myself from the attacks of an insane man?"

The general was looking at St. Germaine.

"About time to grab him!" he barked. The Frenchman nodded and Col. Barlow pressed a buzzer. Almost instantly there came the sounds of a door crashing back, the tramp of soldiers entering and a confusion of voices dominated by Janner's shouting protests as he was dragged away by the troopers who had been waiting outside. Then silence. They were off the air.

For a moment the group in the control room stood without speaking. Then the general said: "We congratulate and thank Lt. Melton."

It was the cocktail hour at the Cafe International and at a little corner table Carol sat facing Bright over a pair of hollow stemmed glasses filled with champagne. Their eyes were holding hands, as Carol put it, and Bright was struggling to say something.

"Well, our leave is nearly up," he said. "I reckon we ought to do something about that, Kansas. I was figuring that perhaps we, well, I know the time is short and all that, but say, listen, have you got some particular preference as to the army chaplain who might marry us tonight?"

"Yes," said Carol promptly. "The nearest one!" THE END.

Only a few more weeks remain in which to make pickles and relishes, so let's not put it off any longer!

Of first importance are vegetables of good quality, absolutely fresh ones. Cucumbers, especially, need to be pickled within a few hours of gathering. Many pickle troubles can be traced to the use of cucumbers which had wilted in the markets before canning. Hollow pickles, tough skinned, or shriveled cucumbers often are the result of pickling the vegetable in a none too fresh state.

Use soft water, cider vinegar, and cooking salt in making pickles. Minerals present in hard water may cause darkening of cucumber pickles. Cider is recommended for its flavor; table salt contains a starchy filler which may cause the pickling solution to become cloudy.

If you have space in your kitchen, make your dill pickles in a crock. Quick dills are good, but usually the pickles which take several weeks to cure are better.

Dill Pickles in a Crock.

¼ bushel cucumbers
2 gallons soft water
2 cups cooking salt
3 cups vinegar
Grape or cherry leaves
Dill

Wash and scald four or five gallon crock and cover the bottom with a layer of well washed grape or cherry leaves. Add a layer of dill. Wash the cucumbers well and pack half of them into the crock. Add another layer of dill and grape or cherry leaves. Pack in remaining cucumbers and top with a third layer of dill and leaves. Boil water, salt, vinegar together for five minutes and cool. Pour over cucumbers and place a cover or plate with a weight on it, over them, so that cucumbers will be kept below the brine during fermentation. Place a clean cloth over the top of the crock and leave crock in a fairly warm place, between 80-85 degrees, to ferment. Active fermentation will begin in a few days and will be completed after two or three weeks, possibly a little longer. Remove scum from top of pickles two or three times a week, for if scum remains, it will cause spoilage. If brine evaporates, add more made in the same proportion.

When pickles have stopped fermenting and are firm and well flavored, remove them from the brine, pack into clean jars with a sprig of dill in each jar, bring brine to the boiling point, pour over pickles and seal. Store in a cool place.

Make kosher dill pickles in the same way, but add a few cloves of garlic and a few small hot peppers to the crock with the dill.

Green Tomato Chow-Chow.
[10 pints.]

2 quarts green tomatoes
2 quarts small onions
3 medium heads cauliflower
3 medium, firm cucumbers
6 red peppers
2 quarts green or wax beans
1 cup salt
1 cup dry mustard
3 tablespoons turmeric
2 cups brown sugar
2 tablespoons flour
2½ quarts vinegar
¼ cup celery seed

Chop vegetables, sprinkle with salt and let stand overnight. Drain. Mix mustard, turmeric, sugar, and flour, bring vinegar to a boil and add. Stir and cook for five minutes, then pour over vegetables, add celery seed, and mix well. Fill jars and seal. Process for 15 minutes in boiling water bath.

For other pickle and relish recipes, see "Favorite Pickles and Relishes," 5 cents, by mail. Address orders for booklet to Mary Meade, Chicago Tribune. When writing for cooking or canning information, please inclose stamped, self-addressed envelope.

SOX, BROWNS SPLIT; TIGERS TAKE 1ST PLACE

CUBS WIN TWO BY 2-1 SCORES BEFORE 42,822

Beat Cards in Last '44 Home Games.

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

The Cubs, striving to leave pleasant memories with 42,822 of their constituents, rolled back the title holding Cardinals yesterday in a double header that drew the curtain on the 1944 season so far as Wrigley field is concerned.

Charley Grimm's boys, making good use of a few hits off the world series southpaws—Max Lanier and Harry Brecheen—accomplished both victories by 2 to 1 before the season's largest crowd which boosted the Cubs' total home paid attendance to 640,110.

Both Hank Wyse and Claude Passeau carved out fancy pitching jobs during the afternoon, but running them neck and neck for whatever honors the fans were willing to dispense vocally were Phil Cavarretta and Andy Pafko. The former, with two singles in the first game put one run in scoring position and drove in the other, and in the other argument Pafko exploded nothing less than a knockout homer with a mate on base.

Cavarretta Leads Attack.

The Cubs didn't give Lanier time to get settled in the first game before giving him a one run nick. Hughes singled with one out in the opening inning, went scooting to third on a single by Cavarretta and scored on Nicholson's fly. Two hits also were involved in the third inning incident in which the Cubs hung up what proved the winning run. Williams led off with a single but Wyse forced him. Hack hung around until awarded a pass and he was forced by Hughes, after which Cavarretta exploded another single, Wyse scoring.

Verban, who was responsible for three of the hits off Wyse, picked the start of the fifth for one of his safeties and this developed into the Cards' only run. He went to second while Lanier was being thrown out and scored when Hopp doubled with two out.

Pafko Hits Two Run Homer.

Passeau scattered five hits thru the second game, but until Pafko was heard from it looked as if two of these five blows would be sufficient for the Cards to capture the one decision needed for the formal clinching of their third straight pennant. In the opening inning both Johnny Hopp and Ray Sanders pummeled the veteran for two baggers to score a run that loomed larger and larger as the Cubs continued to paw feebly at the southpawing of Brecheen.

For six innings Brecheen stepped along so elegantly that only three hits were recorded. But at the start of the seventh he issued his first and only pass, Cavarretta being the recipient. Bill Nicholson popped out to complete a day of futility at the plate and the first two pitches to Pafko were strikes. Brecheen figured he could get over another on the next pitch. It came over but Pafko turned it around and whistled it into the left field seats. It was his sixth of the year.

When You Come Home.

When you come home to me, my dear,
You'll find I've changed a lot;
I'll not burden you with problems,
And other silly rot.
I'll never criticise your tie,
Or your shoes without a shine;
And if you never have a shave
'Twill suit my fancy fine.
I'm thru with preachin' what to eat,
Just why you shouldn't smoke;
I'll never whine for luxuries
When I know that you're dead broke.
For war has taught me many things,
My heart now stands ajar;
When you come home to me, my dear,
I'll love you as you are!

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Milwaukee, Wis., Sept. 17.—Football fans who like a little brawling on the side saw one of the roughest games in National league history at State Fair park in suburban West Allis this afternoon when the Green Bay Packers beat the Brooklyn Tigers, 14 to 7.

Three Tigers and one Packer were shagged off the field while 12,994 shirt-sleeved spectators watched the Tigers smash all league records for penalties. Twenty-one were called against them for a total of 165 yards.

Bear, Card Marks Topped.

The 150 yards leveled against the Bears in 1942 in a game against the Cardinals had been high until today. In 1936 a Cardinal team was nipped 16 times and this total, likewise in a game involving the Packers, stood until today.

Bob Masterson and George Smith, former Redskins, and Rookie Cecil Johnson were the Tiger bad boys. They were joined by Ade Schwammel, the baldish Packer end, who mixed it with Masterson late in the fourth quarter. Smith was banished for tossing his head gear and Johnson got the thumb because of an altercation with Larry Craig.

Hutson Scores as Usual.

The penalty barrage overshadowed the saner moments of the game when both teams demonstrated they could play football. Don Hutson caught a 12 yard pass and ran 12 more for the first score, just two seconds before the first quarter ended. This was the 36th consecutive league game in which Hutson had scored. When he kicked the point it was his 53d in a row and he made it 54 when the Packers scored again in the third quarter to break a 7 to 7 deadlock. This record, at 72, is held by Jack Manders.

A poor punt by the Packers early in the third quarter gave the Tigers the ball on their opponents' 43. Rookie Ken Fryer of West Virginia led this attack with passes and the veteran Pug Manders did the leg work, finally going over from the 1. Brueser Kinard's kick tied the count.

Blocked Punt Aids Cause.

Six minutes later the Packers had the clincher after having previously failed to crack the tie when Glen Sorenson's attempted field goal from 47 yards out was short. The new chance came when Joe Mason blocked Fryer's punt, with Charley Brock catching the ball and running to Brooklyn's 17. On the first play Lou Brock swept to his left and, with Sorenson throwing two terrific blocks and Craig chipping in with one, raced over the goal.

BEARS WIN OVER GIANTS, 20 TO 10, ON LATE RALLY

Buffalo, N. Y., Sept. 17 [Special].—The Chicago Bears, champions of the National Football league, came from behind to beat the New York Giants, 20 to 10, in an exhibition game today before 20,981.

The Bears trailed, 10 to 6, late in the third quarter as the result of the efforts of 38 year old Ken Strong, place kicking specialist; young Bill Paschal, a warrant officer in the merchant marine, and Arnie Herber, playing his 12th year of pro ball.

Fumble Leads to Score.

Then the Bears got a break and it was all they needed. Abe Croft recovered Paschal's fumble on the Chicago 45. Johnny Long, Bear quarter back, flipped an 18 yard pass over the heads of a drawn in Giant secondary. Another toss to Croft for 23 moved them to the Giant 14 as the third period ended. Long pitched to Ray Nolting for 9 and Gary Famiglietti went over from the 2 to give the Bears the lead as the fourth quarter opened.

The Bears drove 61 yards for their last score. Al Grygo, Bob Margarita, and Famiglietti picked up three straight first downs, carrying to the Giant 24. Then Gene Ronzani passed to Connie Mack Berry, who made the catch on the 2 and stepped across unmolested.

Bears Hold Early Lead.

The Giants spotted the Bears six points in the opening period. Al Grygo's 22 yard run behind sharp blocking, after taking a punt, set up the first score. Margarita slipped thru guard for 17 to the Giants' 3. Long threw a pass to George Wilson in the end zone for the touchdown. Pete Gudauskas missed the try for point.

Paschal, leading ground gainer of the league last season, sparked a Giant march of 63 yards as they went ahead before the half ended. He gained 34 yards in eight tries, and scored thru center from two yards out. Strong added the point that put the Giants ahead, 7 to 6.

Herber, former Green Bay star, set up the other Giant score. Paschal ran for a first down to the Giant 34. Herber passed to Frank Liebel for 15. His next pass was ruled complete when Ray Nolting interfered with Joe Sulaitis on the Bear 18. On fourth down Strong came in and kicked a 24 yard field goal.

Tigers Beat Indians Twice to Take A. L. Lead; Yanks Lose 2

Cleveland, O., Sept. 17 (AP).—The Detroit Tigers surged into the American league lead today by winning a double header from the Cleveland Indians on a pair of brilliant pitching performances by Stubby Overmire and Ruffus Gentry.

The Tigers took the opener, 7 to 2, on Overmire's six hitter and the second game, 3 to 0, as Gentry delivered a two hit shut-out. The double triumph, coupled with St. Louis' split of a double header with the Chicago White Sox, gave Detroit a margin of four percentage points over the Browns.

Manager Lou Boudreau got the first hit off Gentry when he led off the ninth with a hard smash thru the box.

Dick Wakefield's double behind Rudy York's walk produced one marker in the second and the Tigers added the final two in the seventh.

The Tigers backed up Stubby Overmire's six hit performance in the opener by utilizing all their 11 hits in runmaking.

New York, Sept. 17 (AP).—The Yankees lost valuable ground in the American league race today by dropping two one-run decisions to the Philadelphia Athletics, 5 to 4 and 2 to 1 before 51,235 cash customers, their second largest crowd of the year. Larry Rosenthal's pinch homer beat them in the opener, and Joe Berry's relief pitching stopped them cold in the final.

The double loss dropped the Yankees into third place, two full games behind the Detroit Tigers, who assumed the league lead by virtue of their double triumph, and a game and a half behind the second place St. Louis Browns, who split with the Chicago White Sox.

St. Louis Half Game Behind Detroit.

BY EDWARD BURNS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

St. Louis, Mo., Sept. 17.—Smiling Joe Haynes and a suddenly revived crew of White Sox associates this afternoon took away from the Browns what they had bestowed on them last night and prolonged in the first game of today's double header—top ranking in the American league pennant race. When Haynes, et al, beat Luke Sewell's lads, 8 to 2, in the second game before 22,094 paying customers, they dumped the Brownies into second place, a half game behind the twice-victorious Detroit Tigers. By taking the first game, 5 to 1, the Browns gained a full game on the twice-losing Yankees now in third place, two games back of the new leaders, the Tigers.

In the victorious second game the Sox were held to two hits by George Muncrief, who has not finished a game since July 30, but one of these was a first inning homer by Thurman Tucker which balanced off a run which the Browns made in their first inning for a 1- to 1 tie until the Sox wrecked things for the Browns with three runs off Muncrief, and they followed with four off Sam Zoldak in the eighth and ninth innings.

Sox Break 1 to 1 Tie.

The Sox's breaking of the 1 to 1 tie in the second game started when Tucker's grounder bounced high over Mike Chartak's head for a double. Wally Moses then beat out a high bouncer to Muncrief, Tucker reaching third. Hal Trosky flied to Al Zarilla, Tucker scoring and Moses taking second on a throw to the plate. Eddie Carnett was given an intentional pass, then Moses and Carnett executed a double steal as Ralph Hodgin struck out. Mike Tresh singled to right, scoring Moses and Carnett.

2 Runs Without a Hit.

The Sox scored two runs without a hit in the eighth. Zoldak walked Haynes and Schalk sacrificed. Tucker walked and was forced by Moses, Haynes stopping at third. Haynes and Moses put on a delayed double steal, Haynes scoring. Trosky was safe at first and Moses scored when Don Gutteridge made a wide throw to first after playing back in right field for Trosky's grounder.

With two out in the ninth, Webb singled and scored on Haynes' double. Sig Jakucki replaced Zoldak and Haynes scored on Le Roy Schalk's single to center.

In the first game, home runs by Stephens and Gutteridge with emphasis on the former's No. 19, with one on in the first inning were really Bill Dietrich's undoing altho two markers driven home later by George McQuinn were enough to win the ball game.

Nelson Potter, accounting for his 16th victory of the season, held the Sox to three hits until the ninth.

PIRATES SPLIT IN DOUBLE HEADER WITH CINCINNATI

Sewell Wins 18th, 7-1; Reds Take 2d, 2-1.

Pittsburgh, Pa., Sept. 17 (AP).—The Pittsburgh Pirates closed their home season by dividing a double header with the Cincinnati Reds today before 19,823.

Rip Sewell turned in his 18th victory of the season as the Pirates took the opener, 7 to 1. Frank McCormick's single in the 10th with two out sent Woodie Williams home to give the Reds a 2 to 1 victory in the final.

Cincinnati's catcher, Ray Mueller, took part in both games to run his consecutive string to 202 contests. The Reds won four out of five in their series here, leaving them only 2½ games below the second place Pirates.

PROTESTS MARK ANNUAL CLARK TROPHY RACES

Southern Cross, Jackson Park Yacht club cruising yawl, and Lively Lady, South Shore [Milwaukee] Yacht club Q class sloop were time prize winners [under protest] yesterday in the Chicago Yacht club's annual open regatta for the Commodore Sheldon Clark trophies, involving 58 sailing yachts representing all Chicagoland sail yacht clubs from Milwaukee to Michigan City, Ind.

Two Enter Protests.

George Sollitt, owner-skipper of the 60 foot cutter White Cloud, largest entry, and L. L. [Ole] Karas, five times winner of the Machinac race and owner-skipper of the Q class sloop Cara Mia, both protested Southern Cross and Lively Lady as well as all other yachts which finished ahead of the protestants. Southern Cross is owned by Robert P. Benedict and Lively Lady by Otto Dreher. Skippers Sollitt and Karas protested that the leading craft rounded an inner buoy and sailed only nine miles, while their boats rounded the 12 mile course buoys.

Cara Mia and White Cloud were first in their classes to finish, after rounding the buoy marking the longer course. If their protests are upheld these two yachts would win in their classes.

Protest Mixup at Start.

YESTERDAY'S RESULTS.

Catholic League Miscellaneous.

De La Salle, 32; St. Patrick, 0.
St. George, 18; Catholic High of Joliet, 0.
Fenwick, 0; St. Rita, 0. [Tie.]
Weber, 13; St. Mel, 0.
Mount Carmel, 13; St. Philip, 7.

Mount Carmel High school's eleven yesterday gave indications that it is the squad to watch when the Catholic league opens its season on Sunday, Oct. 1, by defeating St. Philip, 13 to 7, in an exhibition game in Yates Avenue stadium.

Jack [Jocko] O'Leary, who scored four times last week when the Caravan beat St. Mel, 60 to 13, yesterday returned a punt for 45 yards to tie the score after St. Philip had gone ahead on Dick Forbes' 15 yard pass to Joe Petruzzi. Petruzzi set up the play by running 25 yards to the Carmel 15. The winning touchdown came when Fred Hendron scored thru the line in the last period.

St. George Wins, 18-0.

St. George, co-champion of the league last year, defeated Catholic High of Joliet, 18 to 0, in Joliet, with Bobby Bowler running 55 yards to score on the opening play of the game. Another score came in the same period when Al Brennan ran a pass interception 40 yards. Jack McNamara went around right end for 38 yards for the final touchdown.

St. Mel took its second defeat of the season when Weber, surprise victor over St. Philip last week, won, 13 to 0, in Key Branch stadium. Weber, with a squad so small that the Catholic league voted last Wednesday to permit the school to use freshmen on the varsity, scored in the first period and in the final quarter, when Ronald Chernick intercepted a pass to go 55 yards for a touchdown.

Fenwick, St. Rita Tie.

Fenwick and St. Rita played a scoreless tie in Hanson park. Quarter Back Coleman Caron's 30 yard run in the opening quarter was called back because of Fenwick's offside. In the third period St. Rita went to the Friar 4 yard line, but Fenwick held. St. Rita lost to St. Ignatius, 26 to 0, in its opener.

De La Salle and St. Patrick, both opening the season, met in Shewbridge field, with Frank Cunningham scoring twice as De La Salle won, 32 to 0.

FIERY IRISHMAN ASSAILS MAYOR IN SCHOOL FIGHT

1,000 at Meeting Demand End of Transfer Ban.

An Irishman with fire in his eyes, whose appearance was a surprise, stole the show yesterday in the Eighth Street theater, 8th st. and Wabash av., where 1,000 persons gathered to attend a protest mass meeting over the canceling of transfer permits for Chicago school pupils.

He is William Ryan of 3625 S. Wolcott av., an American Legionnaire. He was wearing his Legion cap. His appearance resulted in a wild outburst of applause.

His extemporaneous remarks were directed at Mayor Kelly, who failed to show up for the meeting.

"Don't Stand in Gutter."

"We Irish do not have to stand in Mayor Kelly's gutter," shouted Ryan. The crowd cheered. "Where was Mayor Kelly in 1918?" asked Ryan. "He was in the sanitary district; that's where he was."

Ryan, who said he is a Chicago Surface Lines employe, told the meeting, "I want to take your fight to the American Legion convention here in Chicago and that's what I'm going to do." Then he left the platform amid another wave of handclapping.

Later Ryan said he would present the question to the American Legion's convention committee on housing and schooling at a meeting today or tomorrow in Hotel Sherman.

Ask Revision of Order.

Ryan's appearance was the sequel to an otherwise orderly meeting which adopted resolutions calling for modification of the board of education's order prohibiting transfers and providing for the institution of injunction suits in the courts if the appeal is denied. The meeting was sponsored by the Citizens' School committee.

Legal action resisting the board's orders was promised by not later than tomorrow if the board refuses to relent. During the meeting a collection of $560.34 was taken up to finance necessary steps.

The meeting also adopted a motion providing that "we will not send, or take, our children to any school until that order is rescinded."

Presiding at the meeting and elected permanent chairman was Vincent Russo of 5042 Altgeld st. Mrs. Frank H. White of 1716 W. 103d st., was elected co-chairman.

Johnson Fails to Attend.

Supt. William H. Johnson and members of the board of education, who had been invited to attend the meeting, were not present. Three aldermen, Roy E. Olin [8th], Joseph Kacena Jr. [23d], and Nicholas Bohling [7th] attended.

WAR WORK TAB BRINGS ARREST IN PARK ATTACK

Woman Badly Hurt; Companion Beaten.

A war worker's identification badge dropped in a park led yesterday to the arrest of Obie Bradford, 23, a Negro living at 5305 La Salle st., as a suspect in the severe beating of a man and a woman in Gage park, 55th st. and Claremont av.

Both victims apparently were clubbed while sleeping on some newspapers near the lily pond in the park. The woman's skull was fractured. Physicians at Southtown hospital, where both were taken by police, said she may die.

Her companion, who received a deep gash on the head and severe bruises on the body, is George Fennessy, 29, of 1620 S. Harding av., an employe of the Hawthorne plant of the Western Electric company.

Wristwatches belonging to both Fennessy and his companion were missing, together with $5 of the $7 Fennessy said he had in his wallet. He said the woman's purse was missing.

Go to Park from Taverns.

Altho incoherent, Fennessy told Lt. Philip Breitzke of the police homicide detail that he and the woman, who is 20 years old and also works in the Hawthorne plant, attended a movie at 55th st. and California av. Saturday night. Later they visited a couple of taverns, and after purchasing some newspapers, took a bus to Gage park. They spread out the newspapers and lay down near the lily pond, he said. From that time he remembers nothing more.

They were found there at 10 a. m. yesterday by four boys walking thru the park, who saw Fennessy, apparently dazed and staggering, attempting to rouse his companion.

Tells of Attending Movie.

Bradford, who is employed by the Burton Auto Spring company, 2433 W. 48th st., which is near the girl's home, told police he and his wife and 9 year old daughter attended a movie Saturday night and returned home about midnight.

He said that four months ago he lost his identification badge, but that he never had reported its loss. It was found in the dry lily pond.

Police said the badge, when picked up, was bright, and did not have the appearance of having been exposed to the elements several months. Bradford had $18 on his person. He had no wristwatch.

Later police arrested for questioning James Coward, 25, a Negro living at 42 W. 52d st., who shared a locker at the Burton plant with Bradford four months ago, when Bradford says his badge disappeared. Coward denied all knowledge of the attack in the park.

FORT SHERIDAN SAYS GOOD-BY TO UNIT OF WACS

The 4632 service unit WAC detachment, which has been stationed at Fort Sheridan since Nov. 6, 1943, left yesterday for Fort Sam Houston, Tex., to train for a new assignment of an undisclosed nature in the 6th service command. The unit was formed at Fort Custer, Mich., on July 1, 1943.

Farewell ceremonies were conducted at Fort Sheridan, where Lt. Col. Eldon M. Stenjam, commanding officer of the service unit where most of the WACs worked, said, "You women have amply demonstrated your worth to the nation by the quality of your work, your loyalty, and your devotion."

The WACs performed a variety of important jobs connected with the processing of recruits, overseas veterans returned to Fort Sheridan for furloughs, and more recently, men and women being demobilized at the fort's separation center. Capt. Mildred L. Osby, commanding officer, and 2d Lt. Connie Sinclair, executive officer, both of 6346 South Park way, were in charge of the departing detachment.

CALL U. S. ENVOY FROM BRAZIL FOR 'CONSULTATION'

RIO DE JANEIRO, Brazil, Sept. 17 (AP).—United States Ambassador Jefferson Caffery took off for Washington at 10:20 a. m. today in a navy plane for "consultation." Caffery's departure was kept secret until the take-off. In a statement issued to the press Caffery stated "I am going to Washington where I have been called for consultation."

The remainder of the statement was devoted to praise of the Brazilian war effort and coöperation with the allies which he described as "in many ways too numerous to mention." He praised the government of President Getulio Vargas and the "Pan-Americanism" of Foreign Minister Oswaldo Aranha.

A short time after Caffery's departure a government spokesman, replying to Argentine reports published in Buenos Aires newspaper intimating that "a grave political crisis" had arisen in Brazil, said that he was in a position to "deny categorically any such reports." Complete calm reigns thruout the country, he said.

SURPLUS BILL'S BEST FEATURES LOST--HALLECK

Charges Conferees Killed Safeguards.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Sept. 17.—Rep. Halleck [R., Ind.], charged today that the program to handle the expected 100 billion dollar war goods surplus "will be launched directly into a nose dive" unless house amendments are restored to the bill now taking form in conferences between house and senate committees.

Rep. Halleck.

He said that every constructive major provision inserted in the house by nonpartisan votes either has been killed or reduced to impotence by rewriting. He said that it is understandable that W. L. Clayton, surplus property administrator, "has denounced the conference hodgepodge as unworkable and officially informed the White House that he will not accept appointment as administrator under it."

Changes Contrary to House Policy.

"Those who have read the conference measure understand Clayton's attitude clearly," he said. "No experienced business man could afford to risk his sales reputation by trying to make the measure, as written, work."

Halleck said that new provisions of an astounding nature and running squarely contrary to the expressed policies of the house have been added by the conferees. He said the gravest elimination from the bill is the house amendment to provide trade advisory committees for different lines of goods.

"The only suggestion of a substitute for this wise provision is the appointment of a policy board of three, which shall consist of men selected because 'of their wide knowledge and experience in the various sections of the nation's economy,'" he said. "The past record of the New Deal in staffing departments with underdone economists foretells how that provision would be interpreted by the present administration.

Selling Curbs Destroyed.

"The firm house mandate that surpluses be sold thru regularly established commercial channels, and opposing the government entering retail business in direct competition with established merchandisers, has been sunk. In its stead there now appear in the bill involved selling provisions under which government agencies may sell to any one, in almost any way at almost any price, for cash, on credit, or by bartering.

"Once this plan is under way look out for the big Tuesday night auction of slightly used churns and rocking chairs which have been traded in on tanks."

Halleck charged that "weasel words" have replaced strong house provisions against speculation, freezing, and reimportation of goods sold for export.

NEW BUSINESS IN METALS LAGS BEHIND DELIVERY

Cleveland, O., Sept. 17 (AP).—Progress of the European war has caused "a growing number of metal working companies to become increasingly inventory conscious," the magazine Steel said today.

"New business is substantial but orders continue to fall behind shipments in most products, and there is less pressure for nearby delivery. An increasing number of steel distributors report a definite falling off in average daily shipments so far this month, in a few instances as much as 15 per cent."

Steel said a 50 per cent reduction in the airplane landing mat program is expected by Oct. 1 and some holdup in aircraft tonnage already has developed. The magazine also said another indication of easing demand is the reported war department cancellation of 160 diesel locomotives on order with Baldwin Locomotives Works for shipment to the far east.

"Of the major steel products, mill orders for sheets and large rounds appear the heaviest," Steel observed.

AFL Asks Union Election by Telegraph Workers

Philadelphia, Pa., Sept. 17 (AP).—A demand for an election of a collective bargaining agent for the 66,000 employes of the merged Western Union Telegraph company and Postal Telegraph company was wired to H. A. Milles, chairman of the national labor relations board, today, by William Labrum, president of local 22, Commercial Telegraphers union [AFL], Philadelphia. The telegram said no directive ever had been issued following hearings on an AFL petition for an election, which began Dec. 9, 1943, and ended July 25, 1944.

UAW Ousts Michener as Regional Chief

BY GEORGE HARTMANN.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Grand Rapids, Mich., Sept. 17.—Lew Michener, west coast regional director for the CIO Automobile Workers' union, who in 1941 led the unauthorized strike at the North American Aviation plant, Ingleside, Cal., which resulted in army occupation of the plant, was removed from office by the UAW convention here today on charges of "improper organization and administration."

The convention closed tonight after delegates elected a new executive board. The new board was reported to consist of a majority of members belonging to the faction of the union controled by Walter Reuther, right wing leader, who last night was reelected vice president.

Barring of Delegates Charged.

Michener, a supporter and lieutenant of Harry Bridges, alien CIO leader, was accused in a report by a special investigating committee of bringing about the barring of delegates from several locals at the last UAW convention by failing to report their per capita tax payments to the international union.

The committee also accused Michener of financing the tax payments of other locals which favored his "political beliefs." The committee reported that organization expense under Michener exceeded income by $141,393 during a 16 month period ending last April and that the cost per new member in the area amounted to $25.83.

Suspended After Strike.

This is the second time Michener has been in trouble with the union. After the North American Aviation strike, the UAW suspended him from office for one year but he was re-elected in 1943.

The delegates approved appointment of a three man committee to administer the west coast region for the next 90 days, after which an election will be held. The investigating committee was appointed several months ago by the UAW executive board after California locals filed complaints.

In the past the board has been divided equally between supporters of Reuther and supporters of a faction led by Richard Frankensteen, the UAW's other vice president, with President R. J. Thomas wielding the balance of power.

ASKS 30 BILLION TAX AFTER WAR TO REDUCE DEBT

Washington, D. C., Sept. 17 (AP).—Sen. Russell [D., Ga.] said today he would oppose any attempt to cut taxes under 30 billion dollars a year "until a method has been devised for retiring the national debt."

"It may be necessary [after the war] to make some adjustments downward from the present revenue of 42 billion," Russell told reporters, "but it seems to me that a 12 billion cut would afford sharp relief to business and individuals."

Chairman George [D., Ga.] of the senate finance committee, which handles tax legislation, recently estimated the post-war tax bill might run from 18½ to 22 billion.

Russell said retirement of the national debt could only be accomplished "by high taxes and prudent spending," or else "it will be paid thru inflation and reduction of the value of the dollar."

CUMULATIVE VOTING.

Will you please explain what is meant by cumulative voting in the election of a corporation's directors?—E. Q.

Cumulative voting is a method of concentrating the entire voting strength of a stockholder or minority group of stockholders in favor of a smaller number of candidates for directors than the entire number to be elected. Its purpose is to aid a minority interest to obtain representation on the board of directors.

Under the ordinary system of voting, the stockholder casts, in person or by proxy, as many votes as the number of shares owned by him, for as many candidates as there are directors to be elected. If cumulative voting is employed, the stockholder desiring to concentrate his vote is permitted to cast as many votes as the number of his shares multiplied by the number of directors to be chosen. He may cast all these votes for one candidate or distribute them among two or more. If he votes for more than one, his total vote is divided by the number of candidates voted for. Corporation laws of a number of states provide for cumulative voting.

Hope of obtaining representation thru cumulative voting sometimes gives rise to proxy contests. A recent example was the election of five directors of Allied Mills, Inc., an Indiana corporation, in which, however, the management ticket was successful by a wide margin. A minority group controled 44,256 shares. Concentrating on the effort to elect a single candidate, it was permitted to cast 221,280 votes, or five times the number of its shares. The management, supported by 494,793 shares, was able to cast that number of votes for all five of its candidates.

BANKER MEETING BEGINS SEPT. 25; 3,000 TO ATTEND

The American Bankers association will hold its 70th annual convention in the Stevens hotel Sept. 25 thru 27 with attendance reduced from recent years, officials indicated yesterday. Compared with a normal turnout of 5,000 to 6,000, when several men often represented each bank, attendance is not expected to exceed the 3,300 present at last year's conference in New York City. Each bank has been asked to send only one person.

William M. Jeffers, president of the Union Pacific railroad, will address the first general assembly. Two main topics will be discussed during the convention, post-war planning and the making of loans for small business. The annual banquet will not be held.

TRADE GROUPS' WORLD PARLEY SET FOR NOV. 10

Post-War Policies to Be Discussed.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Sept. 17.—Eric A. Johnston, president of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States, announced tonight that an international business conference, to which representatives of business associations in all of the allied nations have been invited, will be held at Rye, N. Y., Nov. 10-18.

Johnston said that governments are holding conferences on post-war problems and asserted it is time that business, too, prepares for the return to peace by going ahead with its own program.

"There will be big changes in the post-war world of trade," he said. "Germany and Japan will not be major factors in the world markets in the immediate years following cessation of hostilities. Other nations will loom larger than they did before the war.

Most Trade by Businessmen.

"International trade is conducted mostly by businessmen. They know far better than any other group how it should be operated. Government can do only so much. Business must carry on from that point."

Johnston, who spoke for the sponsoring committee composed of the presiding officers of four leading United States business organizations which called the conference, said that 28 countries already have accepted invitations.

Oppose Monopolistic Practices.

Johnston said that topics on the agenda will be wholly international in scope and that subjects so far suggested include the commercial policies of nations, currency relations, industrialization in new areas, transportation and communications, raw materials, cartels and encouragement and protection of investments.

The sponsoring organizations are opposed to monopolistic practices, and they advocate a gradual abatement of war time government controls in the United States, the expansion of trade between nations, and the preservation and development of competitive capitalistic systems, Johnston said.

SYNTHETIC FUEL PROGRAM PLANT SITES PONDERED

Washington, D. C., Sept. 17 (AP).—Sites for three demonstration plants for proving methods of obtaining synthetic liquid fuels are to be determined by the interior department thru a sifting process starting this week.

Congress appropriated 5 million dollars last spring to start the work. One plant will operate on oil shale and the others on coal and agricultural and forest products. Secretary Ickes said today that 150 site proposals already were on file and "thoro consideration" was being given each.

The bureau already has produced liquid fuel from coal in its laboratory at Pittsburgh, Pa., and shale oil from its laboratory in Colorado, but the new plants are to be on a larger scale—one unit of a commercial plant. The results of the experiments are to be made available to private industry.

Terms Added Phone Facility Prospect Dim

No substantial easing of the shortage in telephone service may be expected in Chicago in the next few months, an Illinois Bell Telephone company official said yesterday.

Altho the waiting list dropped from 27,676 applications on Aug. 1 to 25,411 on Sept. 1, no new facilities were put into use. Equipment released by those who left the city or voluntarily relinquished their telephones was utilized, he said.

Major Shortages Continue.

The three major shortages continue. These are home and office instruments, cable capacity, and switchboard equipment. Approximately 12,763 applicants are without service because of the lack of switchboard equipment, 2,148 because of loaded cables, and 10,839 because of the shortage of sets, he said.

Additional sets were expected earlier this summer as a result of a war production board order authorizing manufacture of 800,000 but none has been received, the official said. Companies permitted to manufacture sets have been handicapped by production difficulties, and it is likely that most of the initial output will go to the west coast.

West Coast Worse Off.

"West coast companies are worse off than we are here in Chicago, and therefore the west coast probably will have priority on instruments for months," the official said. "All we can say is that the outlook for Chicago in the next few months as regards phone installations is not good but that it will improve."

MIDDLE WEST CORP. REPORTS GAIN IN PROFITS

Consolidated net income of the Middle West corporation in the three months ended June 30 was $919,743, or 28 cents a share, compared with $797,721, or 24 cents a share a year earlier, Purcell L. Smith, president, told stockholders yesterday. Consolidated profit for the six months ended June 30 was $1,954,770, or 59 cents a share, against $1,932,958, or 58 cents a share, in 1943.

Earnings included approximately $970,000 and $860,000 for the respective six month periods of 1944 and 1943 which could not be distributed as dividends on preferred and common stocks of subsidiary companies, primarily because of dividend arrearages, Smith said.

Net Income 15 Cents a Share.

Net income of the parent company for the quarter ended June 30 was $498,649, equal to 15 cents a share, compared with $329,350, or 10 cents a share. For the six month period earnings were $699,416, or 21 cents a share, against $730,373, or 22 cents a share.

Smith also announced quarterly and half year earnings of Central Illinois Public Service company, not included in consolidated income because Middle West corporation does not hold voting control as a result of the regular voting rights of Central Illinois' preferred stocks, altho Middle West owns a majority of the common stock.

Tell Central Illinois' Profit.

Profit of Central Illinois for the quarter ended June 30 was $460,235, compared with $538,061. In the half year ended June 30 net income was $890,560, against $1,047,632.

Why doesn't someone tell me these things?

YOU CAN'T BLAME THE OTHER FELLOW
if a "freeze-up" wrecks your engine!

ALL RIGHT, so you don't pay much attention to advertising! But sure as it will freeze this winter, some car owner who doesn't heed this message will find a sudden freeze-up has wrecked the cylinder head, engine block, or radiator of his car. He'll learn, too, that these parts are mighty hard to get—that replacements, if available, may take weeks.

Your car is needed to help relieve crowded trains, trolleys and busses. That's why the War Production Board has seen to it that there is enough anti-freeze to meet the real needs of every automobile. However, you may not always be able to get all you want of a particular brand.

Please don't waste a drop. Have your dealer put in anti-freeze in time this year—but avoid wasteful over-protection. Remember, anti-freeze is made from war-critical materials—materials that also go into explosives, rubber, and plastics.

To save anti-freeze and money, have your cooling system checked by your dealer before installing anti-freeze. He'll make sure that all parts and connections are tight, to avoid leakage. He can also clean out rust and scale which so often clog cooling systems and cause overheating and wasteful use of gas and oil.

Have your dealer service your cooling system today and give it two-way protection—against freezing and against rust—with a Du Pont anti-freeze.

SEND NO MONEY ... IT'S FREE!

"Take Care of Your Cooling System" tells money-saving facts you want to know. Send a post card today for this free, easy-to-read, illustrated booklet. Write to E. I. du Pont de Nemours & Co. (Inc.), 2496N Nemours Bldg., Wilmington 98, Delaware.

DU PONT "ZERONE" and "ZEREX" Anti-freeze

"ZERONE"* is made from methanol. Gives maximum cooling system protection at low cost. Odorless. Anti-acid. Anti-rust. $1.00 a gallon.

"ZEREX"* is non-evaporating. One shot lasts all winter! Money can't buy better anti-freeze. Anti-acid. Anti-rust. Limited supply. $2.65 a gallon.
